CELL SPY ON SULLIVAN CASE PRISONERS

HOLD BOSTON MAN AS SPY

Great Britain Calls for Million More Men

WOMAN WATCHES DOCTOR

HOULTON, Me., Nov. 13.—The discovery that a young woman spy, acting under the orders of the county officials, had for several days been keeping a close watch on the movements and conversation of those accused in the death of Mildred Sullivan today gave the defence its second great surprise following the discovery of a dictagraph in Dr. Lionel E. Dudley's cell.

This spy is reported to be a young French woman who was installed as a matron when the new arrests were made following the discovery of the body of "the prettiest girl in Aroostook County." She is reported to have made notes of remarks made by Kate Michaud and Alice Pellitier and to have turned these over to the prosecuting officials. Some of the questions put to the accused in their long grillings are understood to have been based on reports furnished by the young woman spy.

NEW WITNESS FOUND.

The defence learned today for the first time of a new witness secured by the State.

She is Mrs. Charles Stevens of Hammond Plantation, who has told the authorities she overheard the telephone message sent to Mildred Sullivan at her grandmother's by Ambrose Bridge from Presque Isle a day or two before the fair the girl attended.

"Our party line rang," said Mrs. Stevens, "and I heard Ambrose Bridge urge Mildred to hurry to Presque Isle. He said twice during the conversation 'come here,' I want to talk business."

HINTS DEFENCE SURPRISE.

It is understood the authorities also secreted a dictagraph in the Pellitier home. The report comes from counsel for the defence.

Attorney Ransford W. Shaw, senior counsel for Dr. Dudley, sprung a surprise today when he intimated the defence would show that Mildred Sullivan was treated illegally in Houlton before she went to Presque Isle in September. He said: "The State is going to get a few surprises in this case before we finish. They will be astonished to learn what we know about what happened to Mildred Sullivan before she reached Presque Isle on September 1."

Mildred Sullivan's mother was confined to her bed again today. The reaction after the funeral has left her in a weakened state. She has been in bed for five weeks, barring a few days. The bleak day of the funeral was the first on which she ventured out. Mrs. Sullivan feels keenly the statement she did not attend the funeral.

DELUGED WITH LETTERS.

Ever since Mildred disappeared the family has been deluged with letters. The sympathy extended by neighbors and local business men has been one of the splendid features of their affliction. Every household feels keenly the sorrow in that beside the blacksmith shop. Every mother's heart goes out to Mildred's mother in her bereavement.

Mrs. Clara Carpenter, Mildred Sullivan's grandmother, today expressed a doubt that the body buried was Mildred's.

"Do you know," said Mrs. Carpenter, "I feel even now that perhaps they found somebody else's body, there are so many horrible things happening these days, and that Mildred may be still alive.

"I never could think her dead, and I might still cling to the hope that she strong for weeks if her father

New York Cotton Exchange Votes to Open on Monday

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The New York Cotton Exchange will reopen for business on Monday next, it was announced by the governing committee after a meeting today. It closed on July 30, when the war in Europe began, in common with stock and other exchanges. During the interim representatives of the Liverpool exchange visited New York to confer with local exchange authorities as to how to settle the "straddle" and other market questions. Owing to the war, the foreign market for American cotton has been diminished by several million bales. The crop in this country this year was around 16,000,000 bales, or a record one. The decline in price of the staple has made it necessary to form a $35,000,000 cotton pool to protect Southern planter and other interests from a serious financial peril. The reopening of the New York Cotton Exchange is significant of a great change for the better in the cotton situation. It will help all business, too.

Moses Reinherz Is Buried from Dorchester Home

The funeral of Moses Reinherz, a member of the Faneuil Clothing Company and widely known among various Jewish organizations of Greater Boston, was held this afternoon from his residence, No. 75 Harlem street, Dorchester. The services were conducted by Dr. Phillip Israleigh, rabbi of the Blue Hill Avenue Synagogue. The burial was in the Jewish Cemetery at Dedham.

The pall bearers were officers and members of the board of directors of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, of which Mr. Reinherz was the organizer and chairman of the board of directors. They were Samuel Magid, president; Nathan Finlestein, Nathan Soderson, Jacob Weisman, Albert Hurwich, Bernard Lewis, Harry Salakson, Morris Balla, Karl Gastein and Nathan Titledaum.

Mr. Reinherz was president of the Independent Order of Birth Abraham, member of the Knights of Pythias and many other organizations.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—A news agency dispatch from Sluis, Holland, via Amsterdam, says it is reported that some German officers were shot by the order of the Kaiser on his recent visit to Thielt, whither he hastened on hearing that 160 officers had refused to proceed to the front.

NEW BLAZE AFTER THE 'ALL OUT'

Fire department officials will ask the State police to investigate the West End fire of this morning, which after being once extinguished, rekindled, necessitating three alarms on the first fire and two on the second and entailing a loss of $40,000.

It was in the four-story building at Nos. 6 and 8 Alden street, West End, that the fire occurred. After three alarms had been sounded, the fire was extinguished. Then Deputy Chief Taber, District Chief Madison, Captain Mahan and Ladderman Henry Long went through the building thoroughly.

They found everything all right, the charred wood everywhere thoroughly wetted down, and so reported to Chief McDonough.

The all out signal was then sounded, and Hoseman Montgomery was left in charge of the third floor of the building. He made a second inspection and found no trace of fire anywhere.

He heard some object drop in one of the rear rooms, but supposed it was just a settling timber. He was then moving toward the front of the building, and suddenly the whole rear burst into flames behind him and he had to run for his life. He had a narrow escape.

One theory is that some sort of hand grenade was tossed in the rear window to start up the fire again.

The first three stories of the building are occupied by the American Furniture Exchange and the top floor is the laboratory of Forrest Ray, an inventor.

FIREMEN IN PERIL.

A score of firemen, fighting from the fire escape on the third floor, narrowly escaped serious injury when a series of hot air explosions shot sheets of flames through the windows. Ladderman Patrick Buckley slid down an iron support to the street.

Lodgers in the Royal House at No. 143 Court street hurriedly left their rooms as the hotel corridors were filled with smoke. The Wayfarers' Lodge on Hawkins street adjoins, but the inmates were not awakened.

FOUR MEN TRAPPED.

Patrons of the Bowdoin Square Theatre were compelled to leave the building, which was rapidly filling with smoke.

Four men at work at No. 2 Alden court fled by a fire escape. They were John F. Singleton, Joseph Long, Richard Merrill and John O'Neill. Singleton was bruised in jumping from a hot fire escape.

10 Years for North End Man for Killing

Raffaele Grillo of the North End was sentenced today to five to ten years in State Prison in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court before which he pleaded guilty of causing the death of Raffaele oCvina on January 15, at No. 148½ Prince street, by beating the latter with a club.

Mass Meeting to Aid the Infants

In connectoin with the convention now being held in Boston under the auspices of the American Association for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality, a big mass meeting will be held tonight, November 13th, in Faneuil Hall at 8 p. m.

MAY MEET FATE OF LODY

Mayor Curley wired the State Department today asking for a rigid investigation of the case of Reinhold Anton Berrenberg, native of Boston and graduate of the Harvard Law School, who is under arrest in London as a spy, and who, relatives fear, may even be executed as was Carl Hans Lody.

Lody was shot by a firing squad within the grounds of the historic Tower of London. It is intimated in the London dispatches that unless Berrenberg can establish American citizenship by Novtmber 20 he will be in grave danger.

Imprisonment, Berrenberg's relatives assert, is unjust enough. But the terrible fate of Lody, so fresh upon the public mind, has given rise to apprehension lest Berrenberg, native of Boston though he is, may be given the extreme penalty.

Mayor Curley is attending the mayors' convention in Philadelphia. The Berrenberg case was told him over the long-distance telephone. Immediately the Mayor telegraphed Secretary of State Bryan at Washington as follows:

"Reinhold Anton Berrenberg, a native of Boston and a graduate of Harvard Law School, is held at London as a German spy.

Mrs. Grogan Coming Home Without Body of Her Daughter

Mrs. Elizabeth Grogan, who went to Buckeye, Texas, to bring back the body of her daughter, Beryl Grogan Krause, whom she claims was murdered there, is on her way North without the body, according to a letter received in Cambridge today.

In her letter she states she will probably arrive here tomorrow. She says she is bringing back her daughter's pet hound. No reason was given for her failure to secure the body, but the recipient of the letter said that it was probably due to inability to come to an understanding with the young woman's husband, who was in charge of a ranch at Buckeye, where he first became acquainted with Beryl.

Lord Gordon Lennox Killed in Battle

PETROGRAD, Nov. 13.—The sale of wine, beer and distilled liquors has been prohibited here during the war.

TWELVE GERMAN HOWITZERS TAKEN BY THE RUSSIANS

It was officially announced in Parliament today that the British government will call for 1,000,000 more men to fight the Germans. This number is in excess of the number of men already voted for in 1914 and 1915. It does not affect the territorial force. The additional 1,000,000 men will bring the British forces up to 2,186,400.

On August 5 there was a supplementary estimate of 500,000, followed on September 9 by 500,000 more. The number of men now called out by the government answer the requirements of the year ending March 31, 1915, according to British war office estimates.

The British casualties in the western theatre of war were approximately 57,000 of all rank up to October 31, it was announced by Premier Asquith in Parliament in response to interpellations on the subject.

The French official statement, issued at Paris this afternoon, was highly optimistic. It stated that the German attempts to cross the Yser canal by a sortie west of Dixmude and at other points had been repulsed. In general, it declared, the lines of the allies had been maintained unchanged.

An Amsterdam dispatch says that heavy reinforcements of fresh German troops are continually arriving in Belgium to stiffen the German lines, which are battling with the allies in West Flanders. It adds that the fighting around Dixmude and Ypres has been the most desperate in the course of the war.

The War Office at Berlin states that German aviators have made flights above the British coast towns of Sheerness and Harwich, crossing the mouth of the Thames. These are only about thirty-five miles from London.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE BIG GUNS.

The Russian army has won another signal victory over the Germans, according to semi-official advices today. The Army Messenger of Petrograd announced that the Kaiser's forces have been disastrously beaten near Kalicz, and that in their hasty retreat they have left thousands of dead upon the battlefield.

It is also stated that the Russians captured twelve howitzers.

CONFUTE CLAIM OF SIEGEL ON NOTE RENEWAL

GENESEO, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Further testimony as to the business relations between the defendant and the National Bank of Commerce of New York city was given today at the trial of Henry Siegel, former merchant and banker, who is charged with grand larceny in connection with the failure of his enterprises in New York and Boston.

Louis A. Keidel, assistant cashier of the National Bank of Commerce, was the first witness when the trial was resumed. He testified that he had examined the records of the bank through the clearing house, and ascertained that on June 14, 1913, the day on which the theft is alleged to have occurred, there came to the National Bank of Commerce through the clearing house from the National Park Bank of New York, an item amounting to $684.05, this being the amount mentioned in the indictment. This was the only item of that amount which passed through the exchanges that day, Keidel said. This item was charged against the credit of the Fourteenth Street Store, one of Siegel's stores.

Keidel strengthened the State's case by testifying that as soon as a note came due that it was charged against the credit of the endorsee provided that the endorsee had sufficient funds in the bank to meet the note. The Siegel note, falling due on April 29, 1913, was immediately charged against the Fourteenth Street Store's account and therefore it could not have been a renewal, as claimed by the defence, according to the witness.

Counsel for Siegel had contended that notes were never charged against the account of the Fourteenth Street Store, but were renewed as they fell due.

FOSTER PARENTS GRIEVE FOR CHILD THEY MUST LOSE

Little Girl of Seven Torn by Law from Her "Mamma" and "Papa."

"Good Night.
Sleep tight.
Wake up bright
In the morning light,
To do what's right
With all your might."

That is the little verse that seven-year-old Bertha Fish learned at school and which she was going to recite so proudly to her "Mamma," Mrs. Herbert C. Fish of West Bridgewater.

But, at the very time that Bertha was telling "Mamma" about the verse, Mrs. Fish was trying to keep the tears out of her eyes and to tell the AMERICAN how the State of Massachusetts proposes to take Bertha from home and give her into the care of utter strangers for adoption.

The case of Bertha Fish aroused deepest sympathy in the Bridgewaters today for the grief-stricken foster-parents of the little girl.

The child is too young to understand the absolute nature of the separation from home and "parents" which confronts her. But, as Mrs. Fish said today:

"We told Bertha all about it and she wants to stay with us."

The State Board of Charity says that Bertha must be given to a Jewish family in the middle-western part of the State for adoption, on account of the law which requires wards of the State, when given for adoption, to be placed in a family of the same faith as the child's parents.

But Mr. and Mrs. Fish, who have had Bertha for four years, cannot bear the prospect of losing her. The child's name is Bertha Goldstein, but she has been known as "Bertha Fish" ever since she was taken to West Bridgewater and Mr. and Mrs. Fish are the only "Papa and Mamma" that exist to her childish mind.

When Bertha brought home the little verse she had learned at school Mrs. Fish began to cry. Bertha, who understands vaguely the shadow that hangs over the home, was filled with instant sympathy. Tears welled up in the big black eyes and rolled down the dusky red cheeks. Mrs. Fish said:

"Bertha, you are going to be taken away from me."

Then Mrs. Fish sobbed bitterly. Bertha climbed up on her lap, burrowed her head into Mrs. Fish's arms and wept with "Mamma."

Mrs. Fish recovered herself enough to tell about Bertha and the State ruling which strikes at them so harshly. She said:

"I have come to have a feeling that no one has a right to Bertha but me. Folks say I will get over the loss. I know better. I am a woman, not a child. If she were my own child she could have no bigger place in my heart.

"Nothing has been as helpful as the influence of this loving little child, always reaching up her arms and crying for the love of 'Mamma' and 'Papa' that we have tried to give her.

"She has a wonderful disposition. She lives every minute in all the affection a child can show for father and mother. She has loved us and loves us now, and we love her. No other can take her place with us now."

Mrs. Herbert C. Fish of West Bridgewater, and Bertha Goldstein, the foster child, which the law says she must give up.

BEGIN TO KILL INFECTED BAY STATE CATTLE

Slaughtering of cattle stricken with the foot and mouth disease began in Massachusetts today, starting with nineteen cows in the herd of George L. Henry at Amherst and twelve in the herd of C. H. Taylor at North Amherst.

Appraising of stricken cattle in Attleboro, Mendon and other towns in that section was done today, preparatory to slaughtering tomorrow.

Thirty-five out of a herd of forty-three cows owned by the city of Boston at Deer Island are stricken and the entire herd will be slain.

Thousands of poultry will also be killed, with many head of swine and sheep.

The elimination process involves destruction of barns or sheds in some cases. It is estimated that 500 cattle will have to be killed in Massachusetts and that the value of cattle, poultry, sheep, swine and property which will be sacrificed will total $75,000 at least.

THREE NEW CASES.

Three new cases of suspected foot and mouth outbreak were reported today from Danvers, Dracut and Randolph. Inspectors from the State Animal Bureau started thither.

The Henry and Taylor cattle in Amherst township, which were killed today, had previously been appraised by Otis H. Forbush of Boston, representing the Federal Animal Bureau, and M. T. Carrigan of Boston, representing the State Bureau.

The killing is done under personal direction of Charles L. Dailey of Boston, a cattle expert, with Commissioner Fred F. Walker of the State Animal Bureau in general charge of the appraising and slaughtering.

The afflicted cattle are killed in the quickest and cleanest way possible. A deep, wide trench is dug, with length proportioned to the number of victims. The cattle are led to the edge of the trench and are shot. Then they are covered with quicklime and lastly with earth. The cattle premises are thoroughly disinfected, or, if destruction of the barn or shed is deemed necessary, that is done.

NO CRITICISM.

In the last foot and mouth epidemic complaint was made that the killing was not properly done. This time no opportunity is to be given for criticism.

So far as the status of the epidemic goes, Dr. James F. Ryder, federal inspector, said today:

"The loss to the government and the different states may run into millions of dollars. There is no knowing when the epidemic will stop. It is far from under control. The authorities have no idea how far the infection may have spread. The federal quarantine, now on cattle, may be extended to poultry."

PERKINS INSANE AT KILLING, SO FRIENDS CLAIM

Relatives of George Bachelor Perkins, the wealthy Boston architect and globe trotter who killed one passenger and wounded the captain and one other passenger on the steamship Mohawk, enroute to Charleston, S. C., Wednesday night, took steps today to have him adjudged insane or at least temporarily unbalanced.

Herbert H. Houlton of No. 387 Beacon street, brother-in-law of Mr. Perkins, left today for Charleston to secure alienists and counsel in behalf of the prisoner.

Mr. Perkins, dispatches from Charleston say, is now held in the insanity ward of a hospital there, in the jurisdiction of the federal authorities. The latter are in charge of the prosecution, as the shooting was committed on the high seas.

Captain Inman warned Perkins that he must dress himself if he wished to walk on deck, whereupon Perkins drew a revolver and began shooting.

Perkins was placed in irons immediately after the shooting, and when the ship docked in Charleston, S. C., was given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Hugar and ordered held on a murder charge. Evidence tending to show he was not mentally responsible was introduced at the hearing.

N. K. Wentworth of Connecticut, who occupied a stateroom with Perkins, testified that Perkins had taken a narcotic which he said was for headaches. Other passengers said Perkins had acted queerly.

George Bachelor Perkins is the son of Mrs. C. B. Perkins and a brother of Mrs. Herbert H. Holton, both of No. 387 Beacon street. He is forty-three years old.

For several years past he has been in Boston only at intervals, and during those visits has made his home with his brother-in-law, Herbert H. Holton, a business man who has offices at No. 147 Milk street.

Mr. Holton said today that he could not account for the tragedy on any other ground than that of a sudden fit of insanity. "Mr. Perkins," he said, "was seemingly in the best of health when he left Swampscott for New York last Monday.

"The only illness to which I knew him to be subject was an occasional severe attack of insomnia. For this, at rare intervals, he was in the habit of taking a medicine in which I believe there were powerful drugs. It is possible that he may have given himself an overdose which produced temporary insanity."

CARRANZA, FORSAKEN, TO FLEE MEXICO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Collapse of the Carranzista opposition to General Eulalio Gutierrez becoming Provisional President of Mexico and the flight of General Venustiano Carranza from the country is expected as the result of negotiations that are in progress today at Lagos, according to advices from Aguascalientes today. General Pablo Gonzales, the Carranzista leader at Lagos, has declared his allegiance to the convention that ordered Carranza from office.

Supporters of General Gutierrez have received information that General Carranza will go from Cordoba to Vera Cruz and sail from there for a foreign country.

That the United States will continue its "hands off" policy and deal separately with the different factions was the opinion in administration circles today. It was indicated that special agents of this government will accompany the several forces in the field and continue the custom of negotiating with the element that is in de facto control of a certain territory.

SUFFRAGE SPLIT OVER SHAW AND BLACKLIST

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 13.—A test strength between Dr. Anna Howard Shaw candidate for re-election as president of the National Woman Suffrage Association and the anti-Shaw forces will occur today when the convention votes on whether to continue the policy of blacklisting members of Congress who are on record as opposing suffrage.

The recent blacklisting of Congressman James Mann, of Chicago, was the subject which started the debate. "The case of Congressman Mann is a striking example of the value of the blacklist" Mrs. Medill McCormick announced from the floor. "Congressman Mann has always been a strong anti-suffragist. He insulted women on the floor of Congress at the time of the Washington parade. He has always stood for reactionary measures. After the blacklist was published with his name on it, he declared himself for women suffrage."

OPPOSES BLACKLIST.

Mrs. Graces Wilbur Trout, who secured Congressman Mann's conversion to suffrage as well as being chiefly instrumental in having the Illinois suffrage law passed arose and started a real debate by declaring:

"Congressman Mann wrote to me that he would hereafter not oppose suffrage only after he was informed that the Illinois association had definitely refused to indorse the blacklist. The policy of blacklist will never put men into the gentle frame of mind necessary to secure their votes for suffrage. You can't get anything from a man when he is angry."

LODGE ANTAGONIZED.

The controversy grew hot and furious and Miss Jane Addams was forced to rap for order when the Massachusetts anti-Shaw faction declared that the blacklist had antagonized Senator Lodge and lost the Massachusetts suffragist the suffragist plank in the Republican platform. The administration slate, headed by Dr. Shaw for the presidency was announced today. The Shaw forces have stolen much strength from the insurgents by naming Mrs. Desha Breckinridge of Lexington, Ky., the antis candidate for president on their own ticket.

The Shaw slate follows: President, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, New York; first vice-president, Mrs. Katherine Dexter McCormick, New York; second vice-president, Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, Kentucky; third vice-president, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Illinois; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Orten B. Clark, Michigan; recording secretary, Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald, Massachusetts; treasurer, Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, Connecticut.

MISS MILDRED JOHNSON, the Cambridge girl who was run down by an auto in Copley square.

Miss Mildred Johnson of No. 215 Norfolk street, Cambridge, today is resting comfortably at the City Hospital, where she has been since she was struck and knocked down by an automobile on Huntington avenue, near Copley square, on Saturday, October 31.

The automobile was owned and operated by Edward B. Abbott of Boulevard Terrace, Brookline. Miss Johnson received multiple injuries and a lacerated forehead.

Abbott appeared in court on a charge of recklessly operating an automobile, and was held for a further hearing in bonds of $1,500 by Judge Creed.

Miss Johnson was taking a post-graduate course at the Emerson College of Oratory in Huntington avenue. She was president of her class. She is well known as a public reader and at the time of the accident had a number of engagements to fill.

Awarded $1,604 in New Haven Suit

A sealed verdict returned by a Norfolk County jury today awarded $1,604 to Ernest H. Wilson of Franklin, in a suit against the New Haven road. Franklin was a Rural Free Delivery driver. On August 2, 1913, at an unprotected grade crossing, he was struck by a train. He receives $1,204 for personal injuries and $400 for the destruction of his automobile.

FITZGERALD RAPS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Former Mayor Fitzgerald condemned the Chamber of Commerce for its failure to "plug commerce" and boost for prosperity, in an address before the Boston Club of Printing House Craftsmen in the Quincy House.

"Boston men," he said, "must think and talk commerce and trade if this community is to develop as it should.

"Never was there such an opportunity as the present, but we are not up and doing as we should be.

"Our Chamber of Commerce should let matters alone that do not concern it and should plub commerce. This, to my mind, is what the Chamber of Commerce is for, and it should not try to settle all the ills that flesh is heir to. The Chamber in some ways is wasting its time to the neglect of the commerce of the city.

"The impotence and the inertia in Boston are permitting all the other cities in the country to get the trade that England and the other nations are unable to take care of.

"How could it be otherwise. The men who are guiding the destinies of the city spend their time in playing golf and things of the sort. One man, a director of forty corporations, has time to sail a yacht. As long as this is the situation Boston will never rouse herself from the slumber she is now in.

"If New England expects to get western trade while neglecting foreign trade it is making a mistake. The West has as good and better industrial brains than New England."

AT ONCE! STOPS STOMACH MISERY AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy Stomachs feel fine.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.—ADVERTISEMENT.

MRS. LAWSON'S DOG LOSES FIRST HONORS

Premier honors at the show of the French Bull Dog Club of New England at Horticultural Hall went to Ch. Dr. De Luxe, sold Wednesday by Mrs. Mabel J. Rundell of Haworth, N. J., to Mrs. Thomas W. Larsen of Newburgh, N. Y., for one of the highest prices ever paid for a dog of the breed.

Mrs. Arnold W. Lawson's Sikdar's Princess was adjudged second. This dog came in for a large share of honors, for aside from winning the several specials for best bitch in the show, it got the special award for the best-headed bitch.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

If cross, feverish or bilious give "California Syrup of Figs."

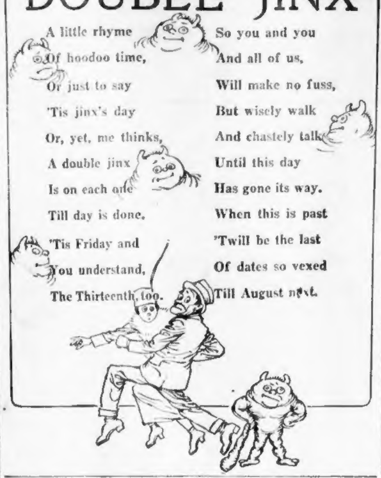
No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, halfsick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently move out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—ADVERTISEMENT.

DOUBLE JINX



A little rhyme
Of hoodoo time,
Or just to say
'Tis jinx's day
Or, yet, me thinks,
A double jinx
Is on each one
Till day is done.
'Tis Friday and
You understand,
The Thirteenth, too.

So you and you
And all of us,
Will make no fuss,
But wisely walk
And chastely talk
Until this day
Has gone its way.
When this is past
'Twill be the last
Of dates so vexed
Till August next.

Ask Funds for the Children's Hospital

Gordon Abbott, treasurer of the Children's Hospital, is sending out an appeal for contributions made necessary by the increased running expenses of that institution since its enlargement.

"The new hospital," he states, "offers much larger and much more perfect facilities for taking and caring for patients, both in the wards and in the out-patient side.

"That the city needed both is shown by the fact that although the increase over last year averages 93 per cent. in the wards and 85 per cent. in the out-patient side, we can do no more than deal with the calls upon us.

"It is evident that this increase in work means greater expense, and we beg those receiving this letter not to allow their sympathy with the misery abroad to cause them to overlook the fact that we have constant illness and suffering around us at home."

PASTORS FIND DRY LAW JOKE IN CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge citizens are today discussing the report of a special investigator employed by clergymen which says that seven out of every eight holders of pony express licenses in the city, and three out of every four drug stores violate the liquor laws of this city.

The clergymen to whom the report was submitted are the Rev. J. L. Campbell, the Rev. William Macnair and the Rev. Richard Wright.

Cambridge is unusually free from the social evil, the investigator finds. There is immorality in the city, but no evidence of the white slave traffic or of syndicated vice. As for gambling, he asserts that a number of places have been found that ought to be broken up.

"The Cambridge Board of Aldermen will no longer be able to bluff us by asking what we know, as we now have more information than has been available in twenty-five years," says the Rev. William Macnair.

SCHOOL BOARD BARS SONG BOOK HIT BY NEGROES

The "Forty Best Old Songs" Superintendent Dyer recently placed in the Boston schools have been ordered discarded after a School Board hearing at which many Bostonians appeared, objecting to such songs as the following:

"Dearest Me," "Carry Me Back to Ol' Virginny," My Old Kentucky Home," "Oh, Susanna!" and "Massa's in de Cold, Damp Ground."

Dr. Samuel A. Brown, pastor of St. Mark's Church, Roxbury, said only the ignorant black and white people use such terms as "massa," "darky," "missus." He said he knew an instance last week where a teacher asked the colored children to sing the songs so the others could get the "accent." After school the colored children were jeered.

'HARVARD TYPE OF AMERICANS IS DYING OUT'

Eugenic records show that American stock, particularly the Harvard College type, is dying out, according to Dr. Charles Benedict Davenport, director of the Eugenics Record Office at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I. This office was founded four years ago by Mrs. E. H. Harriman. John D. Rockefeller is among its supporters.

Dr. Davenport holds that the rate of class reproduction shows that 1,000 Harvard "grads" in six generations will leave only sixteen sons, who will be ruled by 1,000 sons of immigrants. He says:

"Even if we purify our breeding stock, this would be only about half of our duty to posterity, for each year brings to our shores, by immigration, a number of persons, at least half as great as that of the children born of the stock already here.

"The nature of the biotypes to which these persons belong could be determined in their native country in a few hours; and practically without expense to the general government. Yet, through blindness to the importance of blood, through a reliance on the false doctrine that all men are born equal, we are, in our stupidity, warming in our breast the serpent that may some day strike a death blow to American civilization; as the slaves imported to Rome were a true cause of her downfall."

In this strain Dr. Davenport has compiled a set of figures tending to show the lower reproductive rate of American stock. From 1193 bachelors of arts at Bryn Mawr College since 1888 there has been produced to January, 1913, all told, 293 girls.

"Twenty years after graduation, close to the reproductive limit, 328 graduates of Harvard in my class, had produced 195 sons," said Dr. Davenport. "An earlier class of 278 persons twenty-five years after graduation had produced only 141 sons, or in other words, had only half-reproduced itself. And in these figures I make no account of infant deaths. Assuming that a class produces half as many sons as graduates, and that this ratio continues for six generations, 1,000 Harvard graduates of the 1880's will have sixteen male descendants in the 200's. These sixteen sons will be ruled by the scores of thousands of descendants of 1,000 of the Rumanian, Bulgarian, Greek and Portuguese of the 1880's.

Abscess of Brain Threatens Kaiser

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Even famous medical experts of France have now been enlisted in the war against the Kaiser. They are getting rid of him, not by fighting, but by disease. Dr. Cabanes, a distinguished specialist on the ear, has been studying the history and progress of the chronic otorrhoea, a disease of the ear, with which the Emperor is affected.

The Paris Matin quotes Dr. Cabanes as saying the Kaiser is in constant danger that pus will flow into the interior of his mastoid process and the uppper part of his tympanum.

The wall between the middle ear and the cavity of the cranium containing the brain is excessively thin. In the Kaiser's case when the pressure of pus breaks this wall an abscess of his brain will be inevitable.

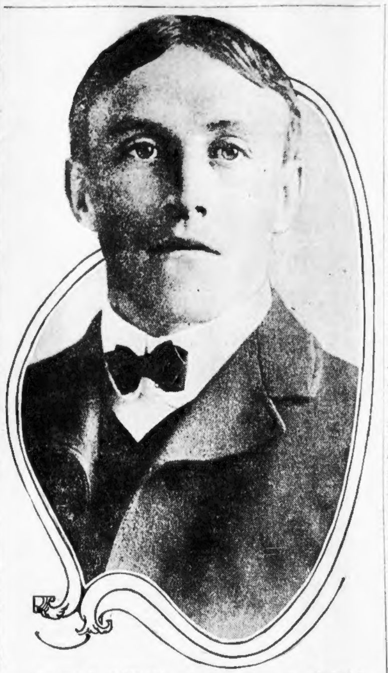
WOMAN TELLS OF PHONE MESSAGE FROM BRIDGE TO MILDRED



Dr. Lionel E. Dudley, Maine physician, held as the principal in the death of Mildred Sullivan.

hadn't told us that he was sure the body was Mildred's.

PICTURES MOTHER'S WOE.

"We got word Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock that the body was found. A neighbor brought a telephone message from Presque Isle. It stunned us, but Millie's mother did not utter a word. She seemed in a stupor for hours.

"Then she suddenly showed a new and strong interest. She wanted to see the body, to glance at the features and to cover it with flowers—for Millie loved flowers.

"Edith, that's Millie's mother, was up early Monday morning waiting and watching and again Tuesday morning. 'Will Mildred ever come?' she kept saying. She looked out the window for Undertaker Dunn. She wanted to know the body was here the first minute possible so she could be near it and shower upon it her silent love and grief. You should have seen how disappointed she was when the body did not come as expected Tuesday morning.

"Mr. Dunn didn't bring in the white casket until the house was packed with people so that they had to crush back to permit the bearers to pass into the dining room.

"Millie's mother seemed on fire at once. She hastened into the dining room and sat just as close to the casket as she could get.

"'Open it quick,' said she. 'I want to see her.'

"'No, Edith, you had better not,' said her husband. 'It wouldn't be best.'

"Mr. Dunn was against it, too. They were pleading for Edith's good, but she wanted to see Millie.

"She kept saying: 'Only for an instant; just long enough to take a last look. Oh, do let me see her and just place a few blossoms on the casket with her. I know she would want me to.'

"The condition of the body prevented. Do you know, Millie's mother hasn't gotten over her disappointment yet. I was beside her at the cemetery and when they lowered poor Millie into the grave her mother said: 'See, they are putting her away forever without my seeing her. They won't let me even put a flower on her breast.'

"I never beheld such pitiable grief. The ache was tearing at my own heart, for we had all been through weeks of strain and uncertainty. Millie was always like one of my own children. When my youngest daughter, Helen, who is Mildred's aunt and a year younger, heard they had found Millie she acted like one bewildered.

"It has all been a constant nightmare. I think and think about it and it doesn't seem possible. I can't think it true. You know we read of such things and never connect them with ourselves. But did ever anyone read anything more cruel than what happened to Millie? Why should so tender a child be selected for so horrible a fate?

"To think Millie, the Millie we all loved so well, should be taken among such cruel people and left to die and then her poor body be carried away at midnight and thrust into a hole in that cruel earth.

"If they had only telephoned us, we could have saved her life. Why didn't they let us know? Why didn't they let her glance into even one face she loved and have somebody dear to her say something comforting to her in her last moments? If they knew she was dying they might have done that or they might have summoned us to the body or sent it tenderly to us.

SEES RECKONING DAY.

"But a day of reckoning is coming to all wrongdoers and the punishment for those concerned in Millie's murder will be swift. I hope they will all suffer."

In the Sullivan household more sympathy is felt for Dr. Dudley, accused as principal in the murder plot, than for Bridge, the victim's sweetheart, but they are not wasting any pity on the doctor or any of those accused.

Mrs. George Sullivan, the victim's mother, today took exceptions to certain utterances made by the Rev. John L. Hess, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, in his remarks at Mildred's funeral service. She said:

"I considered some of Mr. Hess' remarks ill placed and uncalled for. While I do not question his motive it was hardly the place for him to criticise in a bereaved household filled with mourners.

"One would think we were heathens. He might have omitted mention of our religious attitude. It is true we are members of his church and that Mildred belonged to his Sabbath School, but the fact that she didn't attend there is no evidence she didn't go to Sunday School elsewhere. She did, and Mr. Hess doesn't appear to know it."

It is officially announced there will be no arraignment or preliminary hearing in the Sullivan case. This was agreed upon by counsel for both sides. It means the defence has decided to go before the Grand Jury next week without the initial strategy which had appeared imminent.

Kate Michaud was given a few hours of fresh air under the espionage of Deputy Sheriff Martin Lawlis. She was permitted to visit the office of her counsel, Attorney Hersey, and she later did some shopping and took a stroll during a heavy snow squall.

Deputy sheriffs today began serving summonses by the wholesale. The trial is looked forward to with anticipation for miles around.

FIGHT TO SAVE HARVARD MAN HELD AS SPY

Berrenberg, upon the outbreak of hostilities, removed from Munich-Gauting to Paris with his wife and child. From facts presented here a great wrong is being suffered by an American citizen. Will be grateful if you will request Ambassador Page to conduct the most searching investigation."

The relatives in Boston include a cousin, Adolph J. Post, and a sister, Agnes Berrenburg. They live with Mrs. Angelica Post, at No. 218 West Springfield street, South End. Post is a civil engineer and Miss Agnes Berrenburg is a young girl twenty-one years old.

According to cable dispatches, Berrenburg must prove his American citizenship or face execution. Advices received by his relatives here say he is threatened with imprisonment or internment. The details of his predicament are lacking, owing to the strict censorship enforced by the British authorities.

The relatives here have asked Peters to take vigorous action in the matter, and the Congressman, in Washington, is at work on the case.

Adolph J. Post, Berrenberg's cousin, said today:

"We have just received word from my aunt, Mrs. Adolph Berrenberg of No. 463 Central Park, West, New York, saying that my cousin, Reinhold, is held by the military authorities in London, charged with being a German spy. The details are very meager. As we are informed, Reinhold must produce proofs of his American citizenship before November 20.

"He looks like a German, and he speaks the German tongue fluently. It is only natural that the London authorities mistook him for a German spy, considering the fact that he was living in Germany at the time the war was declared, and came almost directly from Germany to London by the way of Paris.

"Following Reinhold's receiving his degree from the Harvard Law School in 1907, I had some correspondence with Secretary of State Philander Knox at Washington relative to appointing my cousin as American Consul at Duesseldorf, Germany.

"The thing never came to a head, but the State Department at Washington must have on file copies of the letters which passed between myself and Mr. Knox at that time. I have asked Mr. Peters to secure these letters and forward them to the London authorities.

"The first nine years of Reinhold's life were spent in Boston. As a small boy he attended the German Catholic parochial school on Shawmut avenue. At the age of nine he went to Germany and stayed until he was twenty-two years old. He returned with his Bonn University degree in 1906 and went to Harvard that Fall. In 1907 he returned to Germany and has not been in Boston since.

"He has a sister, Bertha, who was a prima donna in the Grand Opera at Barmen, Germany. When the family came to New York on one of the relief ships sent to Germany to get American tourists Reinhold's family came to New York. The sister, Bertha, was obliged to break her contract with the Barmen Opera Company and has not been able to secure work since.

"We confidently expect that Reinhold will be released when Ambassador Page receives Reinhold's credentials from Washington."

Although some of Berrenburg's relatives believe that he may be simply held a prisoner to the end of the war other fear he may meet the same fate as Lody. The public mind is very much unsettled in England and to be under suspicion as a spy is dangerous indeed for anyone of German blood.

Had Lung Trouble and Expected to Die

The many recoveries brought about by Eckman's Alterative are attracting wide attention. Read about this case:—

33 H St., Keyser, W. Va.

"Gentlemen:—I was taken sick in November, 1908. I grew steadily worse. Had two consultations. The verdict was the fever had affected my lungs and that my case was hopeless; only gave me two months to live. My physician had tried most all kinds of treatment and none did me any good, so he asked my husband if he objected to him trying a proprietary medicine. I began your Alterative. I was in bed from November 30, 1908, until February 25, 1909, and was thought dying several times. Today I am healthier and stronger than ever." (Abbreviated.)

(Signed) MRS. H. K. BRILEY.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size, $1; regular size, $2, sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.

BISHOP BURT TELLS HOW COUNTRY CHURCH CAN SAVE ITS GIRLS

Bishop William Burt of Buffalo, distinguished Methodist, who is attending Boston convention.

"The best work the churches can do is to make them attractive to the young people," said Bishop William Burt of Buffalo, in discussing the Mildred Sullivan tragedy.

Bishop Burt is attending the Methodist men's convention and is much interested in the work for the young people of the churches. He thinks that within twenty-five years the churches have greatly improved in their interest for young people. This is instanced by the work of the Epworth League in the Methodist Church, as well as by the work of the Christian Endeavor Society and other societies in the churches.

"Young people must meet the churches half-way," maintains the bishop. "Take the country town. What is more lonely for a young girl than a country town where there are few young people? Yet, what a glorious opportunity have the churches in that town to devise means for the social welfare of the young people.

"We all believe the churches should be made interesting for every one. There must be an effort to get personal religion well in the minds of the young people. The social side of the church's life can be made too much of. This is evident when the religious side of the young people is sacrificed to it.

"OPEN CHURCH PARLORS."

"Church parlors should be open to the young people. They should have their social times there. They should have their religious meetings there also.

"No country church should allow any young girl to go outside for her social pleasures. The church should safeguard them. There is no more valuable factor in the social life of the country town than the church at times.

"Young women must inevitably depend upon it for their social pleasures. But don't give them, entirely, the social side of religion. This will not answer. Young women and young men should meet together and have religious meetings together. They should not be afraid of meeting in this way. A good religious foundation will help to keep many a young person out of temptation.

"Unless religious convictions sink deeply into the minds of young people, too much social pleasure may lead them astray. Young people should unite with the church, not because it gives them merely social pastimes, but because it puts them into a moral and religious atmosphere. The churches are doing a splendid work in this respect, but no doubt they could increase it.

"The churches often meet the young woman half-way and more than half-way. Let the young people forget some of the unattractive features of a church, as they seem to them, and take hold of the good work which it is trying to do and get interested.

THOUSANDS TO BE IN A. F. OF L. MARCH TONIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—The real work of the convention of the American Federation of Labor began today when the different committees handed in their reports on resolutions.

The parade will take place tonight. More than 50,000 workingmen and women, it is expected, and several thousand boys and girls will be in line. They will march through a court of honor at Broad and Locust streets, which the city of Philadelphia erected at a cost of $25,000. The parade will be reviewed by Mayor Blankenburg, members of his Cabinet and city councils, with President Gompers and other members of the executive council of the federation.

Big Mackerel Catch Brings Price Down

Though late in the season for mackerel, that fish is selling cheaper in the Boston market than at any time since the season opened. Bloaters sold for 25 cents each and medium-sized mackerel for 15 cents each. The low prices were due to the unusually large catch—24,000 made by five netters off Thacher's Island. At the Fish Pier the wholesale price for bloaters was 16 cents each—for medium-sized 10½ cents each.

Clean your liver and constipated bowels to-night and feel fine.

"White General" of Russian Legend Seen with Army

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The famous "White General" described in Russian legends has made his appearance in the Eastern theatre of war and indicated that the Czar's troops will be victorious, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Mail. He says the Russian soldiers report the "White General" has been seen in the German and Austrian armies walking with his eyes on the ground. The legend says that those whom he passes with eyes averted are marked for death, but those whom he looks full in the face will bear a charmed life.

BOY LIKE GILLIS VISITED CHURCH, PASTOR STATES

The Rev. Fr. Alfred Jones confirms the statement made by Miss Mary E. Kinsella of No. 123 West Fifth street, South Boston, that a young man answering the description of Joseph A. Gillis, captain of the Medford High School football team, who is missing, attended the Mission Church, Roxbury, on November 1.

The pastor, who is conducting a mission at St. Benedict's Church, East Somerville, was at that time holding a mission at the Roxbury church.

The Rev. Fr. Jones says he remembers a young man came to him at the Mission Church, saying he was a football player and was about to undergo an operation. The priest gave the boy his blessing.

According to Fr. Jones, the boy wore a football sweater upon which was the letter "M."

Mrs. Gillis, the boy's mother, says she places no faith in the Roxbury clew and hopes the newspapers will be careful what they publish about the matter. She declared that her son will not return home at all if reports are exaggerated, intimating that he is sensitive about notoriety.

"Border Fortresses Provoked War"

"If you put fortresses between Canada and the United States, with guns poking their noses at you from every side, not even the smiles of Taft or the big stick of Roosevelt could stop war between these countries," said the Rev. Dr. Frederick Lynch of New York before the Congregational Congress in Park Street Church. He was speaking of the guns which are placed all over the countries in Europe and which provoked the present war.

War's Sidelights of Tragedy and Humor

Near the Swiss border the Germans fired 150 heavy shells at an imaginary French mortar. A Teuton airman, flying high over the lines, sighted a huge barrel which a farmer had left upturned in a field, and immediately reported to his commander that it was a French mortar. Thereupon a furious bombardment was begun, the barrel remaining untouched, although 150 shells were hurled at it from noon to midnight.

Besides a shortage of anesthetics which seriously hampers the work of the Red Cross, Germany is reported to have run low in her supply of lead for ammunition, owing to the stoppage of the mines in Galicia and Silesia. A few days ago, according to a late arrival in London, a secret order was issued to the music stores in Berlin to turn over to the government all lead in pianos and other musical instruments in which lead is used.

The voyage by water will enable the wounded to escape the shocks that are felt when trains stop.

Nervous Periodical Headaches
Succumb to Anti-Kamnia Tablets

This trouble commonly called "sick headache," is said to be due to the retention of urea in the system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is a cause of these headaches, or that it is a nervous condition, and in certain cases, no doubt this is true.

Where treatment is demanded, it is more for the pain than anything else, and Dr. A. F. Schellschmidt of Louisville has found Anti-kamnia Tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "Rest should be insisted upon," he says, "and the patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants and family should be as quiet as possible. An emetic will sometimes shorten the attack. The bowels should be kept open with "Actoids," a hot bath and a thorough ablution with a coarse towel often give grateful relief. Two Anti-kamnia Tablets when the first signs appear, will usually prevent the attack. During an attack, one tablet every hour or two will shorten the attack and relieve the usual nausea and vomiting." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

Manned Gun to Last; Killed 600 Germans

PARIS, Nov. 13.—There is a report among the French soldiers on the centre, and it will likely go down as one of the traditions of the French army, that a French gunner, who refused to join the retreat at Vailly manned his gun until all his ammunition was exhausted, killing 600 Germans. He escaped death, but was wounded.

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

The Department Store Trio, who advertise to sell $50, $60 and $75 suits and overcoats at $12.50 or $15, are bad enough, but most men of common sense consider them a joke. But an advertiser is much more dangerous who has his display type set in such a way that it would deceive unless the reader carefully reads all the small type. The result of such advertising is commented on by our beloved Abraham Lincoln, when he said:

"You can fool some of the people all the time, you can fool all the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time."

BRIDE PREFERS CHAUFFEUR TO A MILLIONAIRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Her chauffeur husband is more of a gentleman than the millionaires she has met, according to Mrs. Robert Douglas Connors, who was Elisabeth C. Coppell of Tenafly, N. J., before her marriage to Connors. Her family has objected to the marriage, for Connors as a chauffeur was employed by Miss Coppell.

"I love my husband and respect him," Mrs. Connors said today. "I wish to say that he is a gentleman, although his station in life was humble. If he had been a rich man no objection would have been made to my marriage.

"When I was a girl I used to accompany my father on tours in a private car over the railroads of which he was a director. Dozens of millionaires who traveled or dined with us on those trips were inferior to my husband in everything that goes to make a man. I know many wealthy men in New York who are not nearly his equal in learning or gentility, and he educated himself. His life has been clean."

MOTHER PLANS NEW CHARGES IN SCHOOL ROW

Mrs. May Fay of No. 596 Park street is preparing to bring charges against Charles Lamprey, acting master of the Martin School in Roxbury, who has had her summoned into court on a charge of making a disturbance in the school.

The charges against Mrs. Fay will be threshed out in the Roxbury Court next Tuesday. Mrs. Fay has kept her two boys out of school since the incident, and says she will never let them go back to that school. Her sons are John W., twelve, and Francis, ten.

Mr. Lamprey undertook to punish John for riding on an auto truck and smoking a cigarette. Mrs. Fay says that when she went to the school and heard the charges a clash developed, and Mr. Lamprey placed his hands on her son's throat and raised him from the floor. Mrs. Fay says that when she interfered Mr. Lamprey struck her a blow on the right shoulder with his fist.

Hamilton Tells Methodists He Once Frightened Kaiser

"The Kaiser is the war lord of millions of valiant men, yet I once frightened him," declared Chancellor Franklin Hamilton of the American University of Washington, D. C., at the Methodist convention at Tremont Temple.

"While I was living in Berlin I made a short cut through some shrubbery at the Zoological Gardens, and by chance stepped out in front of the Kaiser, who was riding by on his horse.

"I started to raise my hat and in an instant a look of amazement mixed with terror spread over the Kaiser's face. He turned his horse into the shrubbery and galloped hurriedly away. It was evident that he thought me an anarchist and the package under my arm a bomb."

Filene's

PROVING AGAIN THAT THE FILENE STORE DOES NOT PROPOSE TO BE UNDERSOLD

A Quiet Little Business Talk to Men—and Women

LAST Wednesday morning 400 men's overcoats, of the famous Carr's Melton and lined with Skinner's satin, were advertised as being on sale in the Filene Automatic Bargain Basement at the unusual price of $18.50.

THESE coats were not accidental pickups, but had been made for us by one of America's reliable tailoring houses. The Melton is the standard product of the old West-of-England house whose name the coats bear. The lining is of an equally high standard. Our offer of these coats at $18.50 was typically an Automatic Bargain Basement bargain. They were worth a good many dollars more than their price.

It happened, however, that Wednesday another house offered a limited number of similar coats at $15. This was followed yesterday by the offer of still another house to sell Carr's Melton coats at $14.90.

Applying the Law.

MEANWHILE the Filene store was preparing to enforce its rule that WE PROPOSE NEVER TO BE UNDERSOLD.

Yesterday afternoon's newspapers announced that these coats, previously offered by us at $18.50, would be sold by us at $10.

Editions containing this announcement reached the public shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon.

By 2:30 o'clock p. m. every one of our 324 remaining coats had been sold.

The result was the disappointment of a number of men who came in for them. But that was unavoidable. We could not anticipate that these coats would move out in about three hours, attractive as they were.

The best we can do is to express our regret that there were not enough coats to satisfy all demands, at the same time congratulating the 324 men who were so fortunate as to make their ten-dollar notes go so far.

We Are the Winners.

THE loss to us, by this abrupt price-lessening, was considerable in dollars. But such loss is trifling in comparison with what our loss would have been had we permitted violation of our law against being undersold.

The whole transaction is another demonstration of the fact that the interests of Filene patrons, whether in Basement or Main Store, will be protected to the very last degree, no matter what the immediate dollar loss to us.

ON THE FIRING LINE.

What it means to most men.

There are many true heroes that have perished in the European war who "never smelled powder," but who succumbed to sickness after hard campaigning—coupled with bad water and lack of food. The sick and debilitated man is as much out of place in his struggle for life and existence as he would be on the firing line. On the other hand the strong, vigorous man, his veins filled with rich, red blood, has an enormous advantage in whatever position he may be fated to occupy in war or business.

The prompt and certain action of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in driving all harmful germs and impurities from the blood, set in motion the repair process which works actively on the diseased membrane where Catarrh flourishes unchecked or where the skin gives warning of the bad blood beneath by showing pimples and boils, also the skin clears up and becomes wholesome and ruddy.

Thus by building up a new and perfect covering and carrying out of the system the Catarrh infested matter by way of the blood, liver and kidneys, Catarrh is overcome and permanently conquered.

There is not a drop of alcohol or any narcotic in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, but in this safe vegetable remedy there is a mighty alterative power which by replacing the blood impurities with pure, rich blood, not only ends Catarrhal conditions wherever located, but vitalizes the kidneys, stomach, liver, bowels and every organ of the body. People who suffer humiliation and mental misery because of Pimples, Skin Rash, Blotches, Eruptions, Boils, Carbuncles, are especially benefited. It is not a secret remedy but its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

All dealers in medicines can supply Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, or send 50 cents in one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial box of tablets.

SIEGEL BANK CASHIER TO TESTIFY TODAY

GENESEO, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Frank L. Champion, cashier of the savings bank which Siegel conducted in his Fourteenth street store, will be the principal witness at the trial of the grand larceny charge against Henry Siegel today.

Through Champion the government expects to strike its hardest blow at Siegel. It is expected he will tell how the money of 12,000 depositors was taken in at the windows to the aggregate sum of $2,[illegible] and then practically shovelled out the rear door into the allied Siegel enterprises which the State maintains were bankrupt at the time.

The testimony of Herbert P. Howell, vice-president of the National Bank of Commerce, tended to show that the money advanced to the Siegel concern was lent on Siegel's written statement, made no distinct variation from his evidence on direct examination. When the crash came the Bank of Commerce lost about 90 per cent. of the face value of the notes.

PROSPERITY IS PREDICTED BY U. S. BANKERS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 13.—Members of the Investment Bankers' Association of America who are attending the annual convention here declare that the future holds forth unusual promise and that prosperity will soon prevail in the United States.

The proposal by the president of the organization, Charles B. Caldwell, Chicago, that a [illegible] pool be formed to take over the stocks and bonds that might be thrown on the market by investors caused considerable informal discussion, but action by the convention was deferred.

Mr. Caldwell suggested that the pool be launched in connection with the opening of the stock exchanges throughout the country and that it be subscribed by bankers and investors and managed by five or seven bankers selected from Boston, New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. He declared that nothing would so reassure the country at large, secure the immediate opening of the stock exchanges and aid in reviving confidence as the formation of the pool.

John E. Oldham, Boston, spoke on the proposed increase in railroad rates and expressed the opinion that a readjustment is necessary, so that the roads may be able to maintain their financial stability.

Stable Keeper Loses Suit on Fake Claims

Because many of the 476 items in the bill for which he sued were fabricated, and there was no satisfactory evidence of the plaintiff's personal veracity, Henry R. Arrests May Clear Up Robberies Here

By the arrest in Indianapolis of five men who, it is said, are safe-blowers, the Boston police believe that robberies here may be solved. MRS. FRANCISKAS BUDRIKIS, twenty-year-old Hyde Park wife, who is missing.

HUSBAND SEEKS HYDE PARK WIFE 22 DAYS MISSING

Leaving his wife, Franciskas, in his store while he went to Boston to purchase some stock, Adam Budrikis, who owns a dry goods store at No. 1424 Hyde Park avenue, Hyde Park, was greatly surprised to find on returning home that his wife was missing. Budrikis is making a thorough search for his young wife.

On October 22, the day that Budrikis left her in charge of the store, she had received a letter from Chicago.

Shortly after her disappearance the husband found a bank book hidden under the rug in the parlor and on inspecting it found that his $250 that he had deposited in the People's Savings Bank in his wife's name had been withdrawn.

Mrs. Budrikis is twenty years old, four and one-half feet tall, weighs 140 pounds, has light hair and complexion. She has a prominent mark on her nose which can hardly be seen as she wears glasses covering it. When she left home she wore a brown suit, red sweater, black velvet hat with white trimmings.

Miss Rennyson's Recital Arounses Much Enthusiasm

Miss Gertrude Rennyson gave a recital in Jordan Hall last night before a fair-sized and appreciative audience. The singer is a Conservatory graduate, who has won fame both in this country and Europe. She was prima donna soprano with the Savage English, made an appearance with the Boston Opera last season, and has sung at the Bayreuth Festival.

Her program last night was very broad, ranging from the Italian operatic style exampled by the Suicide Aria from "Gioconda," through the French chanson and German lieder to English songs.

Miss Rennyson was in fine voice and good spirits, and was liberal with encores. She sang very daintily with pretty little Eighteenth Century Bergerettes, and was very impressive in the Sapphic Ode of Brahms, but she was not at home in the air of Elizabeth from Tannhauser, which closed the concert and which awakened much enthusiasm.

Judge Visits Alley in Building Suit

Mr. Gennara Fusco, who owns the building at No. 170 Salem street, is today seeking in the Superior Court to have Eli Silberstein, owner of the building at No. 172, restrained from tearing down a party wall between the two buildings. Fusco also seeks an injunction to prevent the destruction of a chimney. In order that the situation might be made clearer, Judge Pierce made a personal visit to the property and inspected an alleyway between the buildings.

SUFFRAGISTS NON-PARTISAN BY LARGE VOTE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 13.—The executive council of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, at the opening of the forty-sixth annual convention here, declared its political non-partisanship and went on record as opposed to attacks on any political party.

This action was taken in the adoption of resolutions presented by Mrs. Raymond Brown of New York.

The "reaffirming the historic policy of political non-partisanship" of the association was accepted almost unanimously.

The ticket prepared by the caucus contained the name of Mrs. Desha Breckenridge of Kentucky for president, and the caucus adopted a resolution requesting Dr. Anna H. Shaw to accept the position of president emeritus, that she might devote her entire time to campaigning for the cause. Dr. Shaw, in a statement, formally declined to accept the proposition.

Her statement follows:

"I shall accept the nomination for president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association if it is tendered to me by the convention now meeting here, but under no circumstances will I consent to act as president emeritus."

FRENCH DUKE ON MYSTERY TRIP IN MAINE WOODS

FARMINGTON, Me., Nov. 13.—Ostensibly on a hunt for game Prince Ferdinand de Bourbon Orleans, Duc de Montpensier, brother to the pretender to the former French throne, is at West Carry Pond camps, in the lower Dead River region on the direct route to Parlin Pond, where secret wireless messages are alleged to have been sent for Germany. The ducal retinue is large and the party mounts sixty guns. It is the most elaborately equipped expedition for mere game hunting that ever entered the Maine woods.

The question is raised whether the Duke is really after game or wireless. The size of the party and the proximity of the Parlin Pond woods increase this suspicion. It is less than twenty miles from the Duke's present camp to the woods where the wireless is alleged to be concealed.

In his party are Dr. Poizat de Garente, private physician to the Duke, Captain H. E. Morton of California, ex-captain of the Mongolia and commander of the Duke's private yacht Mekong and many servants and guides.

Several searches have been made for hidden wireless plants and a Canadian agent is said to be working at this time near Parlin Pond.

When the war broke out the Duke was at Yokohama and offered his yacht, on which he had amused himself with practical instruction in wireless, to the British and French ambassadors. The offer was accepted. The yacht carries six guns. He then offered his own services to France but, because he was of the royal family, they were declined.

However, the British Admiralty accepted and he will enter the British navy if he has not already done so. He formerly was in the Spanish navy and won a [illegible] for bravery in Morocco.

The guides with the Duke's party are the best in that section of Maine, being picked for their woodcraft and knowledge of the region where the hunt is being conducted.

If the Duke seeks only wild game, he is said to have entered the woods with a retinue and an array heretofore unequaled. Captain Norton announced that they intended to stay about two weeks.

Rumors are in circulation in Berlin, according to a London news agency dispatch from Copenhagen, that General von Hindenburg and his entire staff including [illegible] German Prince have been captured by the Russians. Although the Crown Prince is supposed to be in command of the German forces in the east, there is no suggestion that he is the Prince referred to.

Kalicz, the scene of the latest Russian victory, is only a few miles east of Posen and forms part of the line of defence to which the Germans retired after their unsuccessful drive toward the Vistula.

The Russian armies opposing the combined Austro-German forces are now on the offensive at five different points in the great war theatre, extending from the Baltic to southern Galicia—in East Prussia about Goldap, in East Prussia on a long front from Lyck to Soldau, in western Poland, about Cracow and about Przemysl.

REPORT GERMAN SUBMARINE SUNK.

The military critic of the Petrograd Gazette says that the forces which captured Johannisburg have Danzig as their objective. A successful drive to this Baltic port would give to the Russians practically all of East Prussia.

"The Kaiser has issued a proclamation to his army in the eastern theatre of war declaring that he is relying upon his soldiers in East Prussia to hold back the Russians until Calais and Boulogne can be taken," says a Copenhagen dispatch to the London Times. There is unusual activity among the German fleet at the Kiel, the correspondent says, which indicates the German Admiralty's intention of beginning naval operations on a big scale.

A French torpedo boat has rammed and sunk a German submarine off Westende, near Ostend, according to the Echo De Paris. The newspaper gives this description of the encounter: "The German boat fired a torpedo at the French vessel, but missed. The latter then swung around and rammed the German, which sank. The French boat has arrived at Dunkirk, slightly damaged.

GERMAN CRUISERS AT VALPARAISO.

The mystery over the fate of the German cruisers Gneisenau and Scharnhorst, which sank the British warships Monmouth and Good Hope in the battle off Chile, may be cleared up by the news briefly given in a cable from Valparaiso today, saying that two German warships have arrived there. PARIS, Nov. 13.—From [illegible] presents a character of violence less than on preceding days. Numerous [illegible] of the Germans to cross the Yser Canal by a sortie west of [illegible] mude and at other points of passage above there have been checked.

Generally speaking our positions have been maintained without change. To the north, to the east and to the south of Ypres the attacks of the enemy have been repulsed. At the end of the day, at different points of our lines and that of the rest of the British army, from the region to the east of Armentieres to the Oise, there have been cannonades and minor actions.

In the course of the last few days of fog our troops have succeeded to progress little by little. They are established almost everywhere at distances ranging from 50 to 300 metres from the wire entanglements of the enemy.

North of the Aisne we have taken Tracy-le-Val, with the exception of the cemetery to the northeast of that village. We have advanced slightly to the east of Tracy-le-Mont and to the southeast of Nouvron; likewise between Crouy and Vregny. To the northeast of Soissons a counter attack by the Germans against those of our troops which had recaptured Chavonne and Soupir has been repulsed.

Similar failures have been incurred by the Germans in the environs of Berry-au-Bac. In the Argonne there has been a violent artillery duel. We have made some minor progress around St. Mihiel and in the region of Pont-a-Mousson.

A surprise attack by our troops against the village of Val Et Chatillon, near Cirey on the Vezouse, permitted the capture of a detachment of the enemy.

A German attack on the heights of the pass of Ste Marie has been repulsed. It is reported that snow has begun to fall on the heights of the Vosges.

CALAIS ESSENTIAL TO KAISER'S PLAN

Who Richard Klegin Is and What He Saw

Richard C. Klegin [illegible] in America [illegible] For ten years [illegible] London and all the large European capitals.

[illegible] Among Mr. Klegin's [illegible] high military people [illegible] sources of information [illegible] the great battles in the present [illegible] indeed, [illegible]

On the [illegible] game of professional baseball ever [illegible] Berlin [illegible] the Olympic [illegible] Gerard, American Ambassador at Berlin [illegible] Ambassador [illegible] officers [illegible] France, [illegible] that [illegible] conclusive [illegible] thousands of miles through the [illegible] war was raging. He left [illegible] the [illegible] were bombarded [illegible] Belgium a fortnight ago.

By RICHARD C. KLEGIN.

Let me begin by saying that I am as free from prejudice as a frog is from feathers. I hold no brief for any country. Having come in close contact with the nations now under arms in Europe, with their soldiers and civilians alike, I find that heroes are fighting under every flag; that other heroes are performing their civil duties with equal bravery and devotion.

Unhappily, I found, too, that the mothers, wives and daughters of these heroes are suffering intensely. Tens of thousands of these women are homeless, penniless, even starving.

For the [illegible] observation [illegible] front in [illegible] with blood [illegible] every [illegible] of atrocities.

From [illegible] there is no doubt [illegible] were committed [illegible] violate all the [illegible] and rules of honorable [illegible]

And [illegible] committed while [illegible] struggle lasts, for in every great body of men, no matter under which flag, there are [illegible] the bloodthirsty [illegible] gets the upper hand [illegible] terrible [illegible] particularly in the fierce of battle.

Kaiser Pins Faith in Krupp Guns.

But I have observed [illegible] sided reports after [illegible] reports [illegible] farther we get [illegible] where they are [illegible] occurred.

And the public [illegible] eagerly swallow [illegible] reports which [illegible] their prejudices.

I will say, however, [illegible] it not for the tremendous [illegible] of the officers [illegible] the horrors [illegible] exaggerated reports [illegible]

[illegible] the Kaiser [illegible] heaven for aid, he pins his faith to his great Krupp [illegible]

I am no prophet [illegible] Hindoos.

Millions to Rise in Holy War.

[illegible] to the new [illegible] England [illegible] Jules Verne or H. G. Wells is writing this.

I believe firmly that the [illegible] the 61-centimeter [illegible] a tremendous [illegible] project [illegible] information [illegible] the greatest [illegible] 61-centimeter [illegible] steel [illegible] Krupp ex-[illegible]

And the Kaiser possesses eight of these 61-centimeter guns that I know of. He will plant them in Calais if it costs eight army corps, 320,000 men of this I am assured.

From Calais to Dover the English Channel is only twenty-two miles wide. The witnesses of [illegible] declared that before the first [illegible] from Calais will [illegible] thirty [illegible] long [illegible] feet high.

"MADE IN GERMANY."

[illegible] officers have told me that [illegible] of modern warfare would [illegible] as solid as New York's new Municipal Building.

Great Execution by Big German Guns.

[illegible] this more readily [illegible] with my own eyes I saw [illegible] effect [illegible] German [illegible]

Ordnance officers have told me that when one of these guns is discharged it recoils [illegible] feet on [illegible] especially constructed [illegible] to receive the [illegible] their own safety the expert gunners retire 600 yards before they discharge the huge tube by electricity.

Boats and Rafts to Explode Mines.

Now, as to Germany's plans to invade England. No one knows its details better than Lord Kitchener, one of the very best soldiers on earth. Military experts of at least four nations have told me that had Great Britain [illegible] Lord Kitchener [illegible] power over her army three years ago the world would be at peace now. The Kaiser has the greatest respect for Kitchener.

The river Elbe for miles up from its mouth contains thousands of boats, rafts and specially constructed flat boats of deep draught all propelled by motors. I have seen them. After the Germans have captured Calais, after the 61-centimeter guns are in position at Calais, many of these boats and rafts in the Elbe will be sent [illegible] into the English Channel between Calais and Dover to explode the mines which the English have placed there almost as thickly as sturgeon eggs are [illegible] in a tin of caviar.

A tremendous artillery fire will be kept up, although, of course, [illegible] mine exploded will cost a raft or boat. At the same time a large fleet of Taubes and aeroplanes will [illegible] over the English coast, dropping bombs in order to throw into a panic the people of Dover and of neighboring towns.

There will be 200 or 300 of these Taubes. England has no such [illegible] force to engage them in an air battle.

Closely following the Taubes a swarm of Zeppelin dirigibles will [illegible] Dover [illegible] that [illegible] number of Zeppelins [illegible] fifty [illegible] are [illegible] different parts of [illegible] these parts are being assembled so expeditiously that a perfect Zeppelin is turned out every three days.

Plan Is to Land 250,000 Invaders.

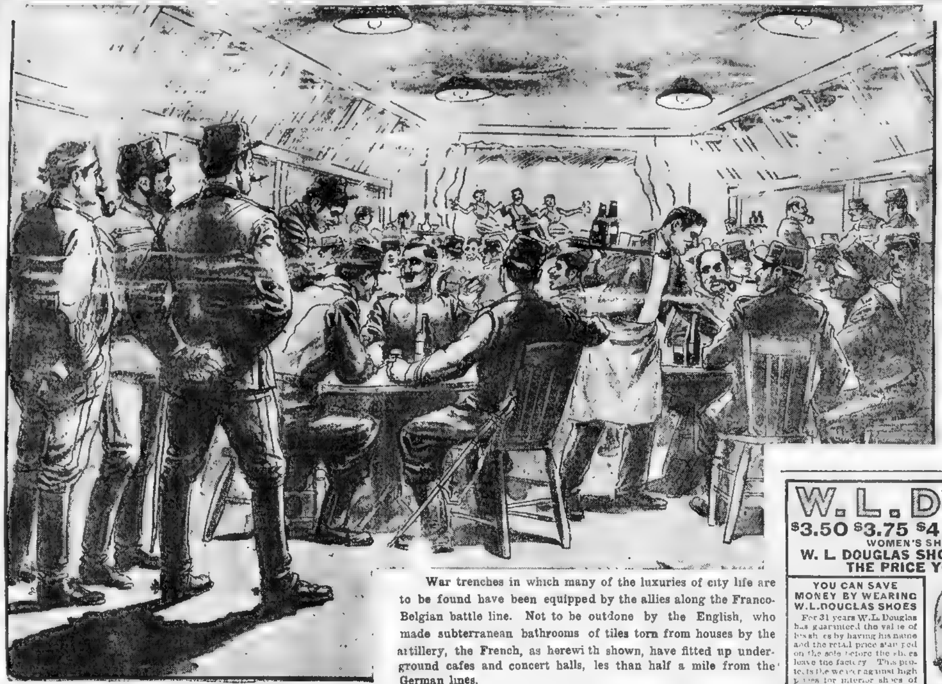
The combined [illegible] of Zeppelins, the German general staff expects will silence the English batteries at or near Dover and put to flight the defending forces more than eight miles inland from Dover, which is to say out of range of the German sixty-one centimeter guns at Calais. [illegible] of those new Zeppelins carries at least four tons of high explosive or petrol bombs. The latter bursting [illegible] when they strike against anything inflammable.

Behind the Zeppelins will approach the English coast — remember I am telling only the skeleton outline of the German plan [illegible] I have been informed the submarines and the small fast cruisers preceding the German dreadnoughts. These of course will take the [illegible] cleared of mines by the floats. If the German [illegible] goes well, the English and French fleets can offer little resistance to the invasion, for it has been proved off the Belgian coast that the allies' battleships dared not come within range of the German forty-two-centimeter guns.

Following the German fleet will steam an armada of transports and great, deep flatboats carrying the German army of invasion. The purpose is to land at least 10,000 an hour so that in a day and a night there will be about 250,000 invaders on English soil. Then the Germans expect to march on London.

Let me add for the moment some conclusions to which my information led me. And let me repeat most emphatically that I am not pro-German.

REAL WAR; SEE THE FRENCH IN THEIR CAFE IN THE TRENCHES



War trenches in which many of the luxuries of city life are to be found have been equipped by the allies along the Franco-Belgian battle line. Not to be outdone by the English, who made subterranean bathrooms of tiles torn from houses by the artillery, the French, as herewith shown, have fitted up underground cafes and concert halls, les than half a mile from the German lines.

This outline of the Kaiser's plans is given by Richard C. Klegin, a well known sportsman, who has just returned from the scene of war.

1—Capture Calais at any cost.

2—Plant on steel and concrete foundations the mightiest Krupp guns so far made, 61 centimetre (24-inch) tubes of steel which will hurl explosive projectiles 30 miles. (The channel is only 22 miles wide at Calais.)

3—Shell Dover from the Calais side.

4—Clear channel of English mines. A fleet of flat-bottomed mine sweepers, sheltered in the estuary of the River Elbe, will be sent into the channel to explode the mines.

5—An aerial fleet of 200 to 300 Taubes will invade England overhead, dropping bombs over Dover to complete the work of the channel-spanning Krupps and to throw the people of Dover and neighboring towns into a panic.

6—Following the Taubes will come the Zeppelin dirigibles, each carrying four tons of high explosive (petrol) bombs. Wherever these bombs light they burst into flame, igniting anything inflammable.

7—The Zeppelins will complete the devastation of the English coast, clearing the way for the Kaiser's naval forces.

8—Following the submarines will be fast cruisers, dreadnoughts and transports.

9—With the channel cleared of mines and the coastal forts silenced, the fleet will land troops at the rate of 10,000 an hour.

10—Lastly the march upon London.

COAST WOMAN PLANNING A WAR BABIES' LEAGUE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—A suggestion for the formation of a "War Babies' League," the object of which would be to [illegible] a "fairy godmother" for every infant of soldiers and sailors engaged in the European conflict, was made [illegible] Mrs. Stella Singleton, widow of the [illegible] Singleton, of the famous [illegible] Aster [illegible] at Bardsley [illegible]

Mrs. Singleton, who after a long sojourn in Belgium returned to Los Angeles shortly before the outbreak of the war, is living with her [illegible]-year-old daughter, Margaret Elizabeth Lillian Singleton, who for short is called "Baby" by her mother.

"I don't claim [illegible] for a 'War Babies' League,'" said Mrs. Singleton, as she [illegible] from a rocking chair, upon the arm of which "Baby" was sitting. "Such a league was formed in London by Lady Scott, Lady [illegible] and other prominent women, while my sister, Mrs. Alice Andrews of Montreal, has urged the organization there of such a body.

"The first year of a baby's life is the most important, and every child born in Europe during the war must receive the greatest care of the [illegible] [illegible] Angeles [illegible] could [illegible] worthy [illegible] money [illegible] than the [illegible] war babies who are [illegible] their way into our world every day."

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 13.—Yale's football squad is ready for the game with [illegible]

With the same lineup [illegible] Coach Frank Hinkey [illegible] for ten days in signal drill, the varsity spent an hour in running off signals and handling punts and passes.

Concluding practice the first string men had their pride [illegible] by being thrust into 15-minute dummy tackling.

This revision to [illegible] was not entirely pleasant, but no players were excused from it, the rush line getting more than the backs.

While the practice in passing and in punting was being held the second eleven played the freshmen, who scored three touchdowns on Dr. Bull's reserves.

Five elevens were put on the field, the largest number [illegible] in practice on record to the final drill before a Princeton game.

The size of the [illegible] Hinkey's scheme for [illegible] substitute players to the [illegible] of the season.

No visiting coaches were present, a marked departure from former years, when former players flocked almost by the dozens to the scene on the eve of the departure of the eleven for Tigertown.

All the work was secret and the players did not visit the Yale bowl.

Hinkey persists in his line-up, selected last week [illegible]

There will be [illegible] and two [illegible] to [illegible] the Tigers.

The lineup [illegible] to start at Princeton follows:

BOWDOIN SQUAD LEAVES FOR BIG TUFTS GAME

BRUNSWICK, Me., Nov. 13.—The Bowdoin football squad left here today for their annual game with Tufts tomorrow. The men who made the trip are Wood, Captain Lewis, [illegible] Moulton, Stone, Brewster, [illegible] Chapman, Colbath, Leadbetter, [illegible] H. Foster, Floyd, [illegible] Austin, Dyer and Bradford. [illegible] the regulars who have been on the injured list during the Maine championship series will be back in the game against Tufts. Leadbetter, who has been playing in the line, has shifted to the backfield and he will have to be watched very closely.

It is expected that Bowdoin will attack Tufts at her own style game, having in Chapman and [illegible]

"Klavicle" Overcoats

Just Received From Kuppenheimer

One touch of winter has given all New England Klavicle-itis. No overcoat ever scored such a tremendous success before. But thanks to our foresight, and to the unequalled facilities of the great House of Kuppenheimer, we're able to supply the phenomenal demand for this marvellous coat which has swept everything before it the country over.

The "Klavicle" Is a Handsome Coat

It comes in a wide variety of both foreign and domestic novelties, in rich Elysians, fancy Cheviots and sturdy Worumbos. The deep velvet collar of harmonious shade, the wide rolling lapels, the cuffs on the sleeves, the patch pockets with flaps and the real South American buffalo horn buttons, in natural colors, all serve to enrich and beautify this fascinating overgarment.

The "Klavicle" Is a Peculiar Coat

The entire back and both sleeves are one single, seamless piece of cloth. This, together with the faultless Kuppenheimer tailoring, results in a certain graceful drape and hang possessed by no other overcoat in the world. Countless other makers have tried to produce a coat like the Klavicle, but without success. Only the most expert designing and finest of tailoring can produce a Klavicle.

The Klavicle is the greatest overcoat achievement of the greatest overcoat makers in America—The House of Kuppenheimer—and is sold in Boston by this Live Store exclusively at

IN the final analysis it is the square deal that counts. "YOU people," complained a "young thing" I know, with soft woodsey brown hair and eyes like leaf gold, and she pried in her big ringed hairpin tighter and patted the roll that ran lengthwise of her head from forehead to crown like the old-fashioned sausage ringlet they used to brush up on babies' heads—"you people," she went on wisely, "who make pictures and things, who make us prettier than we are and homelier than we ever dared to be, who understand us, and make fun of us, and know even the color of the lining of our souls, and every bit of glass that goes to make up the fragile kaleidoscope of our hearts, sometimes you stub your toes and make blunders—same as other people!"

I patted my own crown and smoothed my two eyebrows with a moist finger (which proves I am NOT a man). "My lovely friend, since you rid your busy little mind of that long and tangled sentence, now tell me what's it all about."

"Why," quoth she, enthusiastic, "you always make women parrots when you picture that bird human at all. And let me tell you there are gentlemen—there are elegant and splendidly-colored chaps who are dead images of parrots—save that I like the parrot best!

"The dictionary says that a parrot 'is a gorgeous bird—sometimes very green—with gay colors about him; nothing in his mind so far as we know; with a marvelous power of repeating things that other people say!' Oh, a wondrously clever and brilliant bird! With his tongue busy on mimicry. There's the chap; haven't you ever been bored by him? And he swings in the golden ring of his own complete vanity and never sees the absent-minded girl, and the one with a delicate yawn behind her white hand-back, the gloomy one drowned in despair of his ever going away forever, and the outraged one who looks him in the face and wanders in her soul with men who draw out the silken thread of their own minds in their speech, and doesn't hear a thing of what he says but the last word!

"Oh, parrot man—when you die the angel at the gate will put his hand on your chest and shake his head: 'Not here, until,' he will say, 'you explain the long rows of fallen maidens behind you, lining the paths where you have lingered, maidens bored to death, their pitiful high heels and little toes turned up to the sky! I have let the parrot in—for he is likable and has long fits of silence—but you!'

"And then I will sit up in my grave of boredom and laugh with delight! Make a picture of a parrot man!" So look upon it. But there are women.......!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

HER HUSBAND'S WIDOW

A Thrilling Story of Romance, Adventure and Intrigue, in Which a Beautiful Young Bride Plays the Part of the Heroine

OSWALD thought she was jealous of his attentions to Mrs. Melas and was trying to make her see how little that lady had really meant to him. Poor Oswald, of whom she had never been jealous, and of whom she had no longer the right to be jealous! How did it sound—he could marry that woman with the glittering eyes without so much as asking her, Leslie's leave.

Thinking to relieve her pangs, he had planted the sting much deeper. "Mrs. Melas has just come," he wrote. "She has promptly annexed Steele, to the annoyance of Cousin Ralph, who has designs on the lady's money. I don't mind laying heavy odds on Steele. I don't fancy the sprightly widow will combine with my worthy kinsman to defraud Jimmy of his limited expectations in that quarter."

Leslie crushed the letter in her hand. Well, Victor should not marry Jenny Melas. She laughed bitterly. Herein lay the true explanation of his anxiety that she should not proclaim their marriage. He wanted to marry another woman.

SHE WONDERS HOW SHE CAN STOP IT

Yet how was she to prevent it? By the course she had marked out for herself—by returning to her lawful husband, by throwing herself at the feet of a man who did not want her.

There was no one in the wide world she could take counsel with. Her secret concerned too many others to be confided to a stranger, however trustworthy and impartial. Rose Darley, to whose mistaken idea of the law the mischief was largely due, had married long since and settled in America. So far as Leslie knew she was the one person who could identify her as the wife of Victor Steele.

At all events she must come to a decision soon. Oswald was not a man to be trifled with. He could not long be put off with vague excuses and evasions. With a spasm of bitterness she had realized from his last letter that he cared for her more than she had dreamed.

Two telegrams were handed her as she entered the hotel. She opened them with a wildly beating heart, sure that one of them announced Oswald's coming. The first was handed in at Paris and read:

"V. S. has deceived more than one woman."

She re-read the mysterious message, completely mystified and alarmed. It was unsigned. Somebody, then, suspected her interest in Victor, or thought it necessary to put her on her guard. She tore open the other brown envelope, hoping that it might explain the first. This was handed in at Charing Cross. It ran: "In case of difficulty advise V. S., 200 Jermyn street London."

CHAPTER XXI.

"IN case of difficulty advise V. S." repeated Leslie. She blanched and for a moment feared she was going to faint. She compared the two telegrams. Both portended danger, but from what source she could not divine.

Evidently Victor knew that she was in want of a friend.

He might have heard rumors. Had anything leaked out, and if so, through whom? She ran over in her mind all those people who might be supposed to know of their marriage. Rose Darley she had already ruled out of court. Remained only the sergeants whom Victor had brought to visit her on that fatal day. Could one of them have turned up unexpectedly? But surely Victor had assured her that one was dead and the other in Canada?

The telegram was handed in at Paris. A moment's reflection determined her that it could proceed only from Mrs. Melas or from Oswald.

But Jenny Melas. Leslie knit her brows. Could those bright, glittering eyes have pierced her inmost thought and guessed her secret? If so, the woman might well wish to poison her mind against Victor Steele. Yet she had no cause for jealousy, thought Leslie bitterly. It was obvious to all on board that she cast her siren's spell over the young officer.

"V. S. has deceived more than one woman." She repeated the cruel words again and again. What could this mean?

"In case of difficulty advise V. S." Perhaps that other message might prove a way out of her dilemma. Victor was the only person on earth to whom she could speak freely of these things. One determination began to take shape and to stand out clearly in her mind from the background of blank indecision. At all costs she must see Victor Steele.

There was no help for it. She must go back again over the long, weary journey to London without delay. She glanced at the clock in the hotel lounge. She would just have time to catch the next train to Glasgow and could get on to London by the night train. She supposed she would get there between 6 and 7 in the morning. With luck she might hope to see Victor and return by 2 o'clock. She hated leaving Jimmy even for an hour—he was all she had left now to cling to.

She cashed a check at the office with compunction. The money she was spending so lavishly was in reality Oswald's—the allowance he made her as his wife. She considered herself entitled to the $600 a year which her uncle had intended to leave her, but this sum, which she would once have regarded as a comfortable income, now seemed to her as a ridiculously inadequate dress allowance. She might presently be called upon to live on it.

LESLIE BEGINS TO CURTAIL EXPENSES

She began her economies by travelling third-class beyond Glasgow and foregoing the luxury of a sleeping-car. She was utterly dispirited by the discomforts of the journey.

She reached Euston faint and haggard. She wondered how any of those who saw her drag herself limply to the refreshment room and patiently await a cup of coffee would believe that she had but to telephone, and a whole household of servants would be tumbling out of their beds to prepare for her homecoming at a house in Wilton place. The situation seemed grotesque. And if she had not met Victor at Jerusalem she would have gone on, perhaps to the end of her days, never doubting that she was Oswald Varney's wife.

It was far too early yet to call upon Victor. She walked into the London streets, down the Tottenham Court road to Oxford street.

She had been walking mechanically in the direction of Jermyn street. At Piccadilly circus she paused. It would be a little compromising and unusual to call upon a reputedly single man in his chambers at this informal hour of the morning. On the other hand, there was the risk of their being seen together if they met outside. Of the two dangers she chose the second. She entered a post office and was about to write an express message, when it occurred to her that a telegram would be safer as not revealing the handwriting of the sender. She telegraphed: "Steele, 200 Jermyn street. Meet me ten o'clock entrance British Museum. Urgent— L."

She could not imagine a spot where she was less likely to meet any of Oswald's friends.

Ten o'clock, and with a glance up and down the street she entered the courtyard and mounted the steps of the vast gloomy building. She sat down on one of the seats under the portico.

Every one seemed in high spirits. She turned her face from side to side, heavy for want of sleep, sick with fear and impatience. Eagerly she scanned every male form that appeared between the open gates. Time after time she was deceived by some figure taller than the rest. She closed her eyes, deciding not to open them for another two minutes. When she looked up Mrs. Melas was standing before her.

The two women stared at each other—Leslie in blank amazement; Jenny Melas, as she was immediately conscious, with a glance of malicious enjoyment.

"This is a pleasant surprise," said Leslie, extending her hand. "I thought you were in Paris."

Mrs. Melas ignored the hand. "Did you, indeed?" she said, with obvious irony. "No, I thought I would follow my friends to London. But it's all right, Mrs. Varney, your husband is in Paris. At least he was when I left."

The woman's tone was full of insult. "I hardly understand you, Mrs. Melas," said Leslie, rising to her feet. She looked across the courtyard. Victor was not in sight.

Leslie thought quickly. She did not wish to miss Victor; on the other hand, if he came, it was better that Mrs. Melas should not see him. Besides, she felt instinctively that this woman was about to explain his non-appearance.

"Let us go into the building," she said stiffly.

Mrs. Melas was trembling in every limb. But her expression showed that her agitation was due to anger, not to fear.

MRS. MELAS TELLS OF SENDING THE TELEGRAM

"There had better be an understanding between us two," she said huskily. "You are in love with Victor Steele, and am I."

"Ah!" said Leslie, calmly. She leaned back against the rail and surveyed the other woman in mingled contempt and pity. Yet her heart was beating so violently that it seemed it must betray her. "It was you who sent me that telegram, I suppose?"

"Yes, I sent it. I did not want him to make a fool out of you as he has of me—and others."

"What did you mean when you said in your telegram that he had deceived more women than one?" Leslie asked in a low voice.

"I know he has. He eloped with a girl from Hastings—ah, you have heard about that, too?"

Leslie had started violently.

That Bubble, Reputation

A GOOD NAME IS OFTEN LIGHTLY DESTROYED

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

SOME years ago I spent an afternoon in the woods with a crowd of girls my own age. We had all brought our fancy work and contributions of candy and nuts and were prepared for an afternoon of simple enjoyment. Suddenly one of the girls mentioned a certain pretty girl named Grace. All but one of us knew her and presumably liked her. Said the first speaker:

"Oh, Grace is well enough if only she weren't so affected."

"Is she affected? I didn't know that, but, of course, she is awfully selfish about sharing her good times with her younger sisters," exclaimed the second girl.

"Really? Well, no wonder she has good times," added girl number three righteously. "She runs after all the influential rich people who will entertain her."

Then up spoke the fourth. "I didn't know she bothered to cater to any one but the men, and goodness knows she is forward enough with them."

And each of us had learned some new, unpleasant thing about Grace to add to any personal criticism we might have made of her in the silence of our own hearts. But in addition to all this the girl who had never met her was prejudiced against her, and those of her who liked her best could scarcely help wondering if all this smoke could be without any fire.

So easily is the bubble reputation pricked. And as lightly as a good reputation is destroyed, so easily is a bad one created out of mere bubbles blown by idle and thoughtless people.

The malicious soul who deliberately slanders another is fairly a murderer. He takes a good name, and whether it be mere theft or killing that he indulges in to pass the time and satisfy his own spiteful nature, the result of his work is equally cruel and harmful.

But people who do this are so despicable that they destroy their own influence. Every one fears them. No one trusts them. Consequently the person of whom they tell their evil tales is in some wise protected, because every one knows how little faith can be placed in the word of a scandalmonger.

But words are such dangerous weapons. They lodge somewhere and work harm when their presence is almost forgotten. Some day you may remember what you have heard breathed against some one, even though you have forgotten whether or not the person who said it is reputable authority and to be trusted.

Don't get the habit of insinuating things against people. Don't tell of the weaknesses and follies of the people you know. Each time you call a new person's attention to a fault in a mutual acquaintance, you definitely hurt their standing in the community.

Lightly and easily people destroy good names that they can never restore. For lack of something better to talk about, we destroy one another's credit and standing in the community. And what does it profit us to take away a reputation? People begin to doubt and question us as gossips and ill-natured individuals of whom it will be well to beware. And we have nothing gained except a sour and warped view-point that enjoys hearing the worst of human nature and thinking more evil than it has heard!

Found Out

It happened the other evening, and now a certain clubman is trying to figure out how he will square things with his wife the next time he is "detained" in town. He was not going home for dinner, and when his wife answered his telephonic message he said:

"Don't wait for me at dinner this evening, dear. I shall be detained on business."

"Very well," she replied. "I'm sorry you can't come home. But business is business, I suppose. Where are you now?"

"Where am I? In my office, of course. I have had a very busy day."

"It's too bad you have to work so hard, George. But tell me something."

"Yes, dear. What is it?"

"How can you keep your mind on business with the orchestra playing that jolly ragtime tune?"

Little Mary's Essay

Old Maids and Their Place in Life

By DOROTHY DIX

OLD Maids are somebody that used to be, but ain't now, except in the country, where they still roam about, seeking whom they may devour.

In the cities Old Maids are what my teacher calls an extinct species, like the buffalo, and big sleeves, and hoop-skirts.

When my mamma was young, a lady who did not catch a husband was called an old maid, and all the women who were married to drunkards and loafers that they had to take in boarders to support, looked down on her, and were terribly sorry for her, and always spoke of her as "poor Mary."

Now a lady who does not marry is called a bachelor girl, and she has her own pocketbook, and her face massaged, and her hair waved, and lots of good clothes, and nobody to knock what she does, and all the married women envy her, and say, "Oh, you clever creature!"

I never saw an old maid, although I thought I saw one once, and I said: "Miss Priscilla, are you an old maid?" And she said: "Certainly not, you impertinent little brat. I am simply an unappropriated blessing."

The Old Maid must have been a queer looking creature, for she seems to have been mostly nose, which she was always poking into other people's affairs. Also, she had lots of tongue, that was not canned, but the other kind that is pickled.

Old Maids did not have any homes of their own, but they lived with other people who did not want them, and who thought that they were very kind to Sister Sue, or Cousin Sally, because they gave her her board and clothes for doing the work of two servants.

The girl bachelor lives by herself, and her relatives are very polite to her because she buys shoes for the children, and pays for little Susie's music lessons.

The Old Maid used to weep a great deal, and she had a yellow letter and a faded rose.

The girl bachelor has not got a yellow letter and a faded rose. She has got a check book and a good job, and she tells awful funny stories that make people laugh.

My mother says that the backwoods are still full of old maids, and that they perform a most useful service, for they keep the people stirred up all the time and give them something to talk about, and that many communities would die of stagnation if it was not for the Old Maids in it.

I asked my father what was the difference between an Old Maid and a girl bachelor, and he said that an Old Maid was a woman who wanted to marry and couldn't, and a girl bachelor was a woman who could marry and wouldn't.

I do not know whether I would rather be a girl bachelor or a widow when I grow up.

Schools May Bar 'Merchant of Venice'

Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice" may be barred from the public schools of Boston. The matter is now under consideration by the School Committee. Objection to the use of the play has been made in a formal way to the School Committee upon the grounds that there is much objectionable material in it for the mind of the young people. It would be far better, say the critics from school boards in other cities, that expurgated editions of Shakespeare be used in public schools, and "The Merchant of Venice" be entirely taken from the school list of Shakespeare's plays.

Jean Eagels Finds Starring Easy with Julian Eltinge

Jean Eagels found it a very easy matter to secure the post of leading lady with Julian Eltinge, and she didn't understand why for some time after she had been appearing with the star.

When Eltinge was in Paris selecting the gowns he intended to wear in the season's production of "The Crinoline Girl" he passed a girl in the Rue de la Paix whose attractiveness and charm made him gaze at her almost rudely.

"That's the kind of girl I'd like to have for leading woman," he remarked to a friend, but he dismissed the girl whom he supposed to be a Parisienne from his mind.

When he returned to America, Al Woods informed him he had found a new leading woman for him. He accepted her on trial, although he had never seen her. The first day at rehearsal the new leading woman was brought over, and, to Eltinge's amazement, it was the girl he had seen in Paris. Right away quick Miss Eagels was elected to the part, but Mr. Eltinge did not tell her how it happened she was so readily accepted for some time afterwards.

Boston Business Greatly Improved

Business conditions in Boston and New England are vastly improved. One evidence is the retirement of $2,350,000 in emergency currency by Boston banks. The National Shawmut has retired $1,850,000, the Second National will retire $400,000 and the Winthrop National has already retired $100,000. Foreign exchange rates broke below the figure at which gold is usually exported, which is 4.90. Quotations were: 4.88½ for demand sterling and 4.88¾ for cable transfers. Exchange is now at the lowest figures since the war in Europe began.

BIG INCREASE IN EXPORTS IS ENCOURAGING

There is much better feeling in all financial and trade circles in this country at the end of this week. Chief among the favorable factors is the steady increase in export business.

Demand sterling is near normal rates and this shows how the tide of international commerce is running. It may be that gold will be shipped to this country before long, instead of being withdrawn.

There is reason to expect that this country will be a creditor to Europe before many months, despite the cotton situation. Inability to find sufficient market for that staple is the only serious trouble to be overcome.

MORE TRADING IN STOCKS.

Trading in stocks continues to grow in volume, although exchanges remain closed and no definite steps are being taken to reopen them. Restrictions on transactions in securities outside of the regular markets are fast relaxing. Prices are firmer. There is more demand for standard issues and there is more confidence on the part of brokers and the trading public. Bankers are less opposed to a resumption of the stock market. One is quoted as saying:

"With the new banking system in operation, the chances are that within two or three weeks we shall be able to increase accommodations to brokers very largely."

FOREIGN BANK STATEMENT.

In its latest statement, the Bank of England does not report a continuation of large gains in gold. In fact its bullion decreased about $1,000,000 in a week. But the Imperial Bank of Germany reports an increase of $5,000,000 in gold holdings. It has $420,000,000 in gold now. Considering the war situation, the recent gain in gold by Germany has been puzzling. As to the proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to liabilities, the figure is 33.35 per cent., compared with 33.12 a week ago.

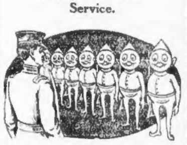
Diseased Blood Calls for Help

Nature's Willing Workers are Always at Your Service.



If it is eczema, pimples, boils or worse—your safeguard is S. S. S., the famous blood purifier. It is always lined up to attack diseased blood. And it always does the work. It does the work after disappointment, after alleged specialists, mercury, iodides, strychnine, arsenic and other destructive drugs that have reaped a harvest of mistakes and left a host of invalids guessing as to what is to come. S. S. S. is not such a drug as the cupidity or ignorance of man would be able to produce. It is Nature's wonderful contribution to our necessities. It is wonderful because it can not be imitated; can not be made any other way than to assemble Nature's products and produce what a host of men know as S. S. S., the world's greatest medicine. There are people everywhere that had an old sore or ulcer that defied all the salves known. And yet S. S. S. taken into the blood just naturally put into that old sore the elements that made new tissue, new flesh, and covered it with a new coating of healthy skin. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggist and be on the way to perfect blood health. But beware of substitutes. For special advice consult the medical department, The Swift Specific Co., 55 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is free and has helped a multitude.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN

BOSTON NOVEMBER 13, 1914

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, NOV. 13, 1914.

It Is Time Now to Remember Our Needy Sufferers at Home

The AMERICAN has already urged that amidst the multiplicity of appeals for aid for the suffering peoples of Europe our citizens should stop and give heed to the needs of our own poor in the present moment of industrial and commercial distress.

The times are hard. For a time they may be harder, though ultimately American prosperity, already visibly reasserting itself in the West, will rescue the whole land from its present depression.

But the needs of the present and the immediate future are grave. Unemployment is spreading, and the man or woman who loses a position today is almost without reasonable hope of securing a new one until commercial conditions are materially improved.

THE INDIVIDUAL DEPRIVED OF ALL MEANS OF LIVELIHOOD IS NO MORE PITIFUL SPECTACLE IN BRUSSELS OR GHENT THAN IN BOSTON.

In an exclusive interview in yesterday's AMERICAN Miss Anne Morgan, whose trained and earnest endeavors for improving the condition of the poor, and particularly of working girls, qualify her to speak, said some very wise things, a few of which we republish:

> "We are facing a tremendous Winter, and it is going to need all our co-operation, all our careful planning to care for the worthy needy among us.
>
> "We must not be blinded to suffering NEAR AT HAND while demonstrating a splendid humanitarianism toward our foreign brothers.
>
> "The appalling number of unemployed women applying daily at the New York Vacation Headquarters has made clear the crying need for major efforts to relieve the distress.
>
> "Just last week two firms in New York dropped between five and six hundred girls. Many of them were depositors in the Vacation Headquarters, and in their helplessness they applied there for aid.
>
> "So far, no one has been turned away. The girls who had employment started a fund sufficient to pay a small daily wage to the unemployed women until permanent positions could be secured. In this way the employed girls became the employers of the unemployed.
>
> "The splendid pluck of these girls who spend their lunch hours, their evenings and any spare time they can manage, to scout for positions for their needy sisters has given me one of the greatest thrills of my life."

Continuing, Miss Morgan spoke of some of the pitiful spectacles she witnessed in Europe, where she was during the early weeks of the war. But she summed up the wise and prudent equation between help for our own people and for foreigners thus:

> "I tell you this because I want you to know that, while I experienced at close range some of the horrors of this cruel war, and while I will continue to do all in my power to help the needy in Europe, I still maintain that Americans must look to the care of their own first, and then do all they can for the alleviation of suffering abroad."

No one can scan the columns of the newspapers in the large cities without being impressed by the multiplicity and the activity of the organizations for sending help to the Belgians, British, French and Germans; to the Red Cross of various nations; for special aid to the wounded or the financially distressed; for the art colony in Paris, and for needy literary workers in London. There seems literally no end to the list of foreign sufferers for whom American aid is solicited.

One list, however, in the same newspapers is larger. That is the list of advertisements under the heading "Situations Wanted."

Nor does this furnish any adequate index to the extent of the distress among working people, for those in the most dire necessity do not advertise. The best index, in fact, is furnished by every reasonably observant man's own environment. Let him consider conditions of employment within his own knowledge and then determine whether home or foreign charities appeal most to him.

There is not one project for raising funds for foreign aid, of which the AMERICAN has knowledge, which we would discourage, or for which we would wish less than the fullest measure of success. But the time is here when for our own needy we must employ the methods so successfully used to raise money for others. We can no longer be blind to conditions at home, nor deaf to the plaints of our own sufferers because of the glare of the fires and thunder of the cannon on European battlefields.

Let charity now begin at home.

If You Kill Anything in New Jersey DON'T Kill a Rabbit

Killing a Child Is Safer—If You Doubt It, Ask Some Judge or Some Railroad

Copyright, 1914, by Star Company

We have told you more than once about the famous New Jersey case—the little child killed by the railroad company and the verdict of $1 ordered by the judge.

The negligence and guilt of the railroad company were proved. The parents sued the railroad; it was their duty to do so.

The judge ordered a verdict of $1, pointing out to the intelligent jury the fact that the parents hadn't lost ANYTHING. The child didn't bring them in any money; in fact, it would cost money to keep it.

In commenting upon this interesting sample of New Jersey justice we showed that the judge, if he had been thoroughly logical, would have ordered the parents of the child to pay something to the railroad—about half what the railroad had saved them by killing the child, and making it unnecessary to spend money for clothes and food to bring the child up.

Now notice another case of justice in the beautiful State of New Jersey.

A small boy, with a fierce gun, stirred up perhaps by the war stories, went out and killed a rabbit. He killed the rabbit in violation of law—the time hadn't come yet to kill rabbits.

THEY HAVE SENT THAT BOY TO JAIL FOR ONE MONTH.

We shall not keep you longer, dear readers, but merely suggest:

If you must go to New Jersey to kill something, DON'T KILL A RABBIT.

Disguise yourself as a railroad corporation and kill a few children—you will find it cheaper and safer.

Mysteries of Science and Nature

Indian Summer and Squaw Winter Are Weather Phenomena with Which Everybody Is Acquainted, but Nobody Can Precisely Fix the Limits of Either

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"WHEN does Indian Summer start, and how long does it last?—C. P."

There is no fixed date for the beginning or ending of Indian Summer. It is a period of readjustment in atmospheric conditions, occurring between the Autumnal Equinox (September 21) and the Winter Solstice (December 22), but usually nearer the latter.

It is characterized by a warm spell, or a succession of warm spells, setting in after the preliminary chill which comes when the sun has sunk below the equator on its annual visit to the Southern Hemisphere, and it is caused by the accumulated Summer heat sufficing to counterbalance the decrease of the daily supply from the sun for a long time after the nights have begun to exceed the days in length.

Its irregularities are due to variations of atmospheric conditions that are too complicated to be accurately traced in advance, but in the long run it is a regular phenomenon that can be counted upon to occur, on the average, every Autumn.

A Poetic Character

Nowhere has the Indian Summer season a more poetic character than in eastern America. It seems to lend itself particularly to the features of our landscapes, giving them a wonderful softness and charm. Always during this curious spell of weather the quiet atmosphere is filled with a delicate smoky film, which produces marvellously beautiful effects of perspective among the hills and valleys.

Many imaginary explanations of the origin of the name "Indian Summer," and of the cause of the singular and often prolonged spell of weather to which it is applied, have been suggested. The early settlers seem to have thought that the peculiar condition of the atmosphere was brought about by forest fires set by the Indians. This was a natural conclusion, because the season is almost always characterized by the presence of much smoke in the air, and this smoke does often proceed from forest and brush fires.

Haze Retains Heat

But to assume that the fires are the cause of the warm Autumn weather is to put the cart before the horse. Fires break out because the weather is dry, and the heat that they impart to the air is merely local. It is possible, however, that the presence of the smoke has something to do with the heat-trapping properties of the air. True clouds being absent for many days during Indian Summer, the sun's rays are poured unobstructedly down upon the earth, and the layer of haze in the atmosphere acts like the gardener's glass panes over his hotbed, retaining the heat that has passed through in the form of visible radiation.

Usually, before the Indian Summer sets in, there is a spell of cold weather, often accompanied by flurries of snow, a first effect of the sun's declension toward the south, and this was called by American settlers "Squaw Winter." It is more commonly known in Canada. The tradition is that the Indians, who were good observers of nature, had long studied these vagaries of the Autumn weather and were able to predict them each year, for which reason the whites gave them designations suggesting their Indian origin.

There are similar weather variations in Spring, due to similar causes. Both Spring and Autumn are only intermediary seasons, coming between the two really characteristic seasons, Winter and Summer, and necessarily partaking of the nature of both. Sometimes one element and sometimes the other prevails. In Spring, wintry conditions, brought about by unpredictable atmospheric changes, but such as are sure to occur with more or less regularity every year, often arrest for a time the general increase of temperature; and in Autumn a similar recurrence of Summer conditions interrupts the forward march of the coming Winter.

Woman and Her Clothes

Every Woman Should Realize That Clothes Which Do Not Express Her Mentality and Her Temperament Always Jar on the Eye of the Beholder

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

"EVERY woman should select her clothes with reference to her best characteristics," said a thoughtful woman recently, "and she would realize the fact that clothes which do not express her mentality and her temperament always jar on the eyes of the beholder, no matter how fashionable and expensive they may be."

This idea may seem far-fetched to the average woman, but it is nevertheless true.

A woman appeared at a garden party attired in the latest importation from Paris (before the war).

All the details of her costume were perfect, and the wearer attracted much attention.

But she did not attract admiration. In some seemingly inexplicable manner she seemed to be a dissonance in the harmony of the scene. Every one noticed her, but not one observer said: "How lovely," "How exquisite," "How becoming," as was said of many other costumes that afternoon.

When the causes were analyzed they proved to be as follows:

The woman's garments were fashioned of tone colors intended to express repose and serenity; their cut and draping were artistic and they breathed of beauty.

But the woman's face betokened a restless and dissatisfied mind. She was unwholesome, in her mental state, and she came from a home where discord and disorder reigned.

Therefore even to the casual observer her costume seemed incongruous. Clothes which have cost worry and strain and heartache are sure to express something of those unhappy qualities to the eyes of beholders; they will fail to fulfil the purpose for which they were purchased in some essential manner.

Clothes cry aloud ofttimes of dishonesty and shame.

Ugly and badly made and untidy garments worn by men and women who have means and time to study the art of dressing speak loud reproofs to their wearers.

Since nature gave so much time and care to the apparel of forests and flowers and meadows and marshes it is right that human beings should regard dress as a matter worthy of consideration.

But every tree and every plant and every blade of grass expresses in its attire some special characteristic of its nature.

Their costumes are not bestowed upon them haphazard, but are selected with great care.

The woman who says she cares nothing for dress, farther than to keep herself comfortably protected from the elements, and who regards time spent on selecting or planning her costumes as lost or wasted, is out of harmony with Mother Nature.

The woman who thinks of nothing but her apparel, and who sacrifices good sense, kindness and even principle to procure fashionable garments, sins against Nature, which is ever sensible, reasonable and wise in her use of time.

Clothes purchased hurriedly and with no thought can never be effective. Nature bestows loving care on each leaf and twig. Clothes which are worn but once or twice by silly women who have more money than brains lack individuality. As well might the magnolia tree pride itself upon discarding all its leaves and flowers each day as for woman to wear her gowns but once.

The woman who dresses to her eyes or the tones of her hair will find it a simple matter to be becomingly attired. More expensively and elaborately dressed women will pass unnoticed where her garments will seem a symphony.

Study the best qualities in yourself, and the best points in your personality, and dress to them. But never dress in a manner to shame your home, or your surroundings.
